Coroner Probes Theatre Crash In Janesville

Body Of One Man Slain In Collapse Unrecognizable On Recovery
3 MIRACULOUS ESCAPES
Victim Pinned Under Beams Directs Rescuers In Saving Others First

By Associated Press
Janesville.—A searching investigation of the causes which led to the collapse of the Sax theatre building with one life snuffed out, will be made by Coroner Lynn Whaley, he announced Wednesday morning. A jury was summoned and examined the scene of the accident Tuesday evening. The body of Claude Cochran, recovered late in the afternoon from beneath the heavy steel beams, was crushed and mangled. The head was unrecognizable where the heavy steel had pinned him to the floor. The three men caught in the wreckage are not seriously injured escaping miraculously although buried under debris. The theatre was receiving the finishing touches in plaster ornaments and haste was being made to get it open. Thomas Saxe, one of the owners, was paying a check for luncheon at the hotel adjoining when the building fell, and would have been out in the theater with the contractor in the next few minutes. He was visibly shocked at the disaster.

PRETENTIOUS EDIFICE
This theater was to have been the most pretentious playhouse in the city with a seating capacity of 1,500. "One is stunned as he contemplates what might have happened had the building collapsed later when occupied," said Coroner Whaley Wednesday morning.

The most serious injuries were to A. M. Schilling, Moline, Ill., both bones of his right forearm being broken. Charles Pawks, Moline, pinned under large beams and who ordered workmen to get the others out before they got to him, was found to be only slightly injured with a cut on the face and leg bruised. He was held by the heavy beams and debris of brick and plaster but smoked cigarettes while being dug out and gave orders as to his release. He returned to the scene of the catastrophe Wednesday morning ready for work.

SALVAGE WORK IN BERKELEY BEGINS

More Than 1,200 Students And 300 Members Of Faculty Are Victims

By Associated Press
Berkeley, Calif.—The first step in the reconstruction of the Crockett and Euclid district of North Berkeley, razed Monday in the most disastrous fire in the city's history, will be taken Wednesday when workers will attack the flame charred ruins with dynamite and wrecking tools. With the 35 blocks or more over which the fire raged still blanketed with smoldering ruins Tuesday surrounded by a cordon of police and army sentries, victims of the blaze surveyed the extent of the disaster and immediately began making preparations for the rebuilding of their homes after the debris of the conflagration has been cleared away.

Hundreds of chimneys will be blasted down Wednesday and laborers will commence the task of hauling away the debris which lies scattered everywhere.

The real and personal property loss in the blaze was estimated at $10,000, 600 late Tuesday by C. C. Emelce, President of the Berkeley Board of Fire Underwriters, to whom 75 insurance adjusters reported after a complete survey of the fire zone. No more than $4,000,000 was covered by insurance, he said. One hundred companies are sharing the loss and claims will be paid promptly, he declared.

The 2,500 homeless victims of the fire Wednesday had found shelter with friends or in homes thrown open to them immediately after the conflagration.

Among the number were 1,200 students of the University of California and 300 families of faculty members. It was officially announced.

BRITISH REPLY ON SHIP LIQUOR PACT IS NOT FAVORABLE

State Department Officials See Possibility Of Double Treaty

Washington.—The British reply to Secretary Hughes' proposal for a reciprocal agreement on ship liquor and liquor smuggling was received at the state department Wednesday and was described by officials as "in general, not sympathetic to the proposals." The British government plans, however, to present the question to the British imperial conference which meets in London next month.

State department officials view the British communication as leaving open the possibility of negotiating a double-barreled treaty to curb rum running and also to facilitate legitimate liquor shipments in foreign bottoms.

The British government, however, does not intend to make a special arrangement extending the right of search and seizure up to 12 miles off shore to prevent wholesale smuggling of liquor into the United States.

It was emphasized that no project was being put forward by the United States for any change in the general rule of international practice that fixes the limit of territorial waters at three miles.

Secretary Hughes also pointed out that under existing law the government was powerless to permit stores of liquor on foreign ships to enter American waters, even when it was clear that the liquor was not to be used or delivered within American jurisdiction. By an exercise of the treaty-making power, Mr. Hughes proposed to overcome this obstacle in a way that would have the effect of an amendment to the law.

The state department does not plan to make public the British communication nor would officials disclose the specific grounds on which British objections were based. In any event the state department regards the matter as still in an indefinite state.

U. S. HERITAGE MAY PAY CITY'S DEBTS

Altenburg, Germany.—By inheritance of $10,000 from the estate of Mrs. Emily Marx, who died some years ago in San Francisco this city of 45,000 inhabitants is prepared to pay off all its indebtedness if the municipal council decides to do so. Some of the deputies favor putting the money out at interest which would be used to pay off current expenses.

Mrs. Marx was born in Altenburg, once the home of the Duke of Saxony.—Altenburg. As a girl she went to the United States where she family acquired wealth. She died in 1912, leaving $50,000 to the municipality of Altenburg, but the will was contested. Only recently a settlement was reached whereby the city received $10,000.

The case had been in the courts of California since 1912.

AGE MAY BE BIG FACTOR IN 1924 POLITICAL RACE

All But Four Of Coolidge Predecessors Were Under 57 On Inauguration

BURDEN IS SUPERHUMAN
Two Possible Candidates, Both Democrats' Are Younger Than President

By David Lawrence

Copyright, 1923 by the Post Pub. Co.
Washington.—Age may be literally a vital issue in the next presidential campaign. Democrats of prominence are beginning to talk among themselves about the age of the men most suitable to make the race against President Calvin Coolidge if the latter is the Republican nominee.

Mr. Coolidge is now just past 51 and will be 52 and a half years March 4, 1925, when the next presidential term begins. Many people who argue that the burdens of the presidency are almost superhuman, and are claiming that the executive he relieved have lost light of the fact that few men enter the presidency of a big business at the age of sixty or more.

Looking over the list of twenty nine presidents of the United States preceding Mr. Coolidge it will be found that all but four were fifty seven or younger when inaugurated, and that the majority were nearer fifty than fifty seven. Of the four presidents who entered the White House above the age of fifty seven, William Henry Harrison, age 68, served only a month of his term and died, Zachary Taylor, who was 64, died in office after a year of his term, James Buchanan was 65 upon inauguration and John Adams was 61.

Using 57 as the upper limit of the presidential age at inauguration—although to be sure the two term presidents have usually been much younger than that—the men who are now

GOTHAM PRINTERS CONSIDER TRUCE

Evening Papers Publish Editions Bearing Names Of All Affected By Walkout

By Associated Press
New York.—Hope for a speedy settlement of the strike of New York men which has prevented the publication of the city's leading morning and evening newspapers since midnight Monday, was entertained when the strikers Wednesday afternoon discussed a proposal that they return to work under a ten days' truce.

The pressmen appointed a committee of five to meet with representatives of owners of the newspapers and of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' union with a view to settling the strike.

Meanwhile evening newspapers continued to publish curtailed editions, each paper retaining its individuality but bearing the names of all papers affected by the strike.

KENOSHA REQUESTS OFFICIAL'S PARDON

Kenosha.—It was announced Wednesday that formal applications would be made to Governor Blaine Thursday for the release of former Chief of Police Owen O'Hara, former District Attorney Peter Fisher Jr., former Sheriff Joseph Meyer and former Under Sheriff Alex Ritter, all of Kenosha, who are serving terms in the state prison following conviction on charges of bribery and malfeasance. The men were sent to prison in the spring of 1922 after the grand jury clean up of Kenosha. The governor is asked to pardon all of them. Their terms ranged from two and a half years for O'Hara to five years for Meyer. Ritter and Fisher are each under three year sentences. Many Kenosha people have asked for the pardon of the four former officials.

The banks containing approximately $10 were not missed until later in the day.

ROCKFORD POLICE SEEK CLEW IN DEATH OF HOSPITAL NURSE

Unknown Man Brings Body Of 26 Year Old Girl To Institution And Leaves

By Associated Press
Rockford, Ill.—Authorities prepared Wednesday to perform an autopsy to fix the cause of the death of Svea Olson, 26 year old nurse whose body was brought into St. Anthony hospital here Tuesday night and placed in a wheel chair by a man who fled before Sister Baptista, a Belgian nun who saw him, could make herself understood to other nurses. Meanwhile deputy sheriffs furnished with a description of the man by the nun, continued their search for him.

The nun, whose knowledge of English is slight, said she was near the hospital entrance when the man drove up in an automobile in which was the body of the girl. He told her the girl was ill and that she had found her lying in the streets. She assisted in carrying the girl into the hospital and attempted to detain the man, who left at once in the machine. She described him as about 20 years old, six feet tall, and weighing 200 pounds.

Hospital physicians said the nurse had been dead only a few minutes. They found no marks of violence on the body and said indications were present that death was due to narcotic poisoning. Earlier in the evening hospital authorities said Miss Olson had been given permission to leave the institution and so down town, and she had left the hospital.

SUPERIOR MAN ON GRAIN COMMISSION

Governor Blaine Appoints Successor To Former Senator Nye

By Associated Press
Madison.—William Bradley, Superior, was named a member of the Wisconsin Grain and Warehouse commission Wednesday by Governor Blaine to succeed former Senator Ray J. Nye. His term is until February, 1926 and the salary $200 a month.

This and a long controversy over selection of a successor to Senator Nye, State Senator M. A. Kemp, Superior, and Assemblyman Sixtus, Lindahl, Superior, were both named as most likely successors.

It is reported that the governor appointed Bradley to avoid the controversy that might have followed selection of one allied with the wet or dry faction.

George M. Sheldon, Tomahawk, was selected as a member of the Wisconsin Real Estate Broker's board to succeed himself for the term of three years, ending Aug. 1, 1926.

Single Armed Drivers Must Keep Arm Free

By Associated Press
Santa Barbara, Calif.—Local police Wednesday had the following order issued by the chief of police to guide them:

"All officers: You are hereby instructed to arrest every one-armed driver of an automobile who has his right arm about a girl's waist." The chief did not explain how a one-armed driver could drive with his one arm around a girl, but policemen said they thought he knew what he meant and would enforce the order to the letter and spirit.

Power Of Executive To Suspend Habeas Corpus Proceedings Tested

MILITARY COURTS CARRY ON
No Effort Made To Assemble Houses For Legislative Purposes

By Associated Press
Oklahoma City, Okla.—Martial rule over Oklahoma appeared rapidly to be approaching a climax Wednesday. Attention momentarily is focused on Tulsa where Governor Walton's authority to suspend the right of recourse to habeas corpus will be tested. There, Adjutant General B. H. Markham, commanding the military forces, has been ordered in district court to show cause why three men held as witnesses by the military should not be released. Whether the adjutant general would obey the summons, however, remained in doubt, due to the question of whether the district authorities are subservient to the military under the decree of martial law.

THREATEN IMPEACHMENT
Meanwhile, state legislators are gathering here to perfect plans for an extraordinary session of the assembly in defiance of Governor Walton. No secret is made of the fact that if the legislature convenes, impeachment proceedings will be instituted against the governor should sufficient basis, for charges be found.

Despite the executive's threat to imprison all law makers who attempt to hold a special session of the legislature "because it would interfere with the prosecution of his fight against the Ku Klux Klan assemblymen leading the movement declare they are within their rights and that the session will be called in session at the signatures of a majority of members of both houses can be obtained. An announced plan is for the legislature to meet as an inequitable body to "investigate conditions in the state." No effort is being made to convene for legislative purposes, for which a call from the governor is necessary, it was said.

Military courts of inquiry here and state investigations acts of mob violence throughout the state, continued in session Wednesday with no indication as to when the work could be completed.

POINCARÉ MEETS BALDWIN IN PARIS

French And British Premiers Confer On Reparations Questions

By Associated Press
Paris.—Premiers Poincaré and Stanley Baldwin of Great Britain conferred Wednesday, presumably on reparations questions. The session ended at 4 P. M. when Mr. Poincaré went to the Quai d'Orsay and Mr. Baldwin proceeded to Rambouillet to be received by President Millerand.

An official communique read: "A meeting of the prime ministers of France and Great Britain took place Wednesday afternoon of which they took advantage to proceed to the exchange of views on the general political situation."

"It was not to be expected that in the course of the meeting M. M. Poincaré and Baldwin would be able to settle upon any definite solution, but they were happy to establish a common agreement of views and to discover that on no question is there any difference of purpose or divergence of principle which could impair the co-operation of the two countries upon which depends so much the settlement and peace of the world."

Nine New Cars Bought By Traction Company To Speed Up Service

Schedule Effective Soon Will Give City 15-Minute Service Running Time To Neenah To Be Reduced To Half Hour

Appleton is to have more frequent street car service, faster interurban transit, and greater riding comfort effective within a week or ten days through the purchase of nine new cars by the Wisconsin Traction, Light Heat and Power company.

Five of the cars already are here and the others will reach Appleton immediately. They are being unloaded and equipped for service and will make their appearance on the local and intercity lines as fast as they are made in readiness.

The purchase includes six interurban and three city cars, according to A. K. Ellis, general manager of the company. They all are of the latest type of electric cars, equipped with modern safety devices and the "last word" in motor and operating machinery.

This plan of raising the balance needed for the county's quota of $2,500 as set by the Red Cross, was decided by the relief committee at a meeting Wednesday morning. An organization will be drafted immediately and tags will be obtained.

It is the belief of the committee that there are hundreds who have intended to give, but merely have forgotten to send in their money to the chamber of commerce or the Post-Crescent. A reminder by the taggers will bring in this money. The plan also will permit the giving of small amounts by those who did not feel they could give a dollar or more.

Outagamie county now is within about $1,000 of the amount asked by the Red Cross to assist the homeless, starving and disease-ridden people of the earthquake zone of Japan. It is believed that the quota should be oversubscribed if anything, because of the fact that it requires only a small amount from each person out of the plenty and prosperity that is here.

Total subscriptions to date are $1,452.75. If you have not sent in your gift, mail or deposit it today at the chamber of commerce or Post-Crescent.

There are many individuals who have given to the fund through their churches, and the list published on another page in this issue therefore does not show the entire number of givers.

Tag Day Will End Campaign For Jap Relief

High Schools Girls Will Ask Contributions In Downtown Area On Saturday

Everybody in Appleton who has not given anything toward the Red Cross fund for Japanese relief will have an opportunity to do so on Saturday, the closing day of the local campaign. A tag day will be held then, with high school girls stationed at the downtown street corners.

This plan of raising the balance needed for the county's quota of $2,500 as set by the Red Cross, was decided by the relief committee at a meeting Wednesday morning. An organization will be drafted immediately and tags will be obtained.

DOLLAR WORTH 65 CENTS LAST JUNE

Washington, D. C.—The purchasing power of the dollar last June, based on an average of prices for various commodity groups, was equal to only 65 cents as compared with its purchasing power in 1913, according to calculations announced Wednesday by the bureau of labor statistics of the department of labor.

The value of the dollar in commodity terms on the 1913 basis of comparison, dropped to its lowest level in May, 1920, when it was forty cents. By the end of the first half of 1922 it had advanced to a point above 70 cents, when another decline brought it to the 65 cents level last June.

U. S. ONLY NATION THAT CAN FINISH TASK IN EUROPE

Rev. John Collier, Oshkosh,
Paints Rotary Optimistic
Picture Of Germany

"It is up to us to finish the job, and I think we are going to do it," said the Rev. John Collier, pastor of Algonquin Methodist church, Oshkosh, in addressing the Rotary club on conditions in Europe at its luncheon at Conway hotel Monday noon.

"No other country still has the confidence of the European nations except America. They believe still in the disinterestedness of America," he said.

The speaker spent ten weeks in Europe this summer. He said he left here on June 2, and among the countries he visited were Ireland, England, Switzerland and Germany. He described conditions in each country and said he entered the latter country with a feeling of sympathy which largely disappeared when he viewed the construction work that was going on and other evidences of prosperity.

His first impression of England after an absence of ten years was that she was down at the heels, was shabby and dilapidated. He was ashamed of her until he learned she had just completed with America arrangements for the payment of the largest bill in the history of the country. It was a grand good thing to know that at least one country was willing to go shabby to pay a bill, he said.

FOUND MCGOORTHY PALE

The speaker said he reached France on July 4. He spent a few days in Paris and then went to Chateau Thierry. Unable to speak French, he was handicapped in securing hotel accommodations until he hailed a man who happened to be an American who inquired where he was from.

Upon being informed he was from Wisconsin the stranger wanted to know if he knew Eddie McGoorthy, the Oshkosh pugilist. He said he did and that his home was in Oshkosh. The stranger directed him at once to a hotel and confided in him he was a great admirer of the Sawdust City boxer.

The next morning the speaker visited Belleau Wood, where the graves of 2,500 American soldiers are marked by white crosses in rows. In going from Chateau Thierry to Belleau Woods, the pastor said he passed through barbed wire the height of a room. Live shells were everywhere and a Beloit young man picked up one he intended to take home until informed it was a gas shell and was advised to discard it.

At Rheims the speaker said he found the cathedral in a dilapidated condition. It was there he realized more than anywhere else the destructiveness of war.

SWISS BEST PEOPLE

He found Switzerland the most beautiful country on God's earth, he said, and informed his hearers that the Swiss people knew how to run their public utilities. Everything in the line of transportation and even some of the hotels are owned and operated by the government.

The pastor said he entered Germany by way of Lake of Constance expecting to find it in a deplorable condition, but at Lindau, one of the first cities visited, he found a magnificent depot with marble lined walls. It had just been completed. The people are all working and he didn't see an acre of waste land. The land is cultivated right up to the roadside, he said.

The speaker related his experience with the depreciated marks and said in exchange for $10 he received two and one-half million. He felt, he said, like a millionaire.

From Lindau he went to Munich and from Munich to Saxony which was like getting into a different Germany, he said. He visited Leipzig, but did not stay at the hotels, preferring accommodations with the plain, ordinary people. At Leipzig he said they have a palatial depot that compares with the Pennsylvania depot in New York which was completed in 1921, after the war.

GERMANY BUILDING

Berlin stands square and solid and in comparing it with Paris, this city was a disappointment to the speaker who entered it through the Brandenburg gate formerly used by royalty. New structures were being erected which included a bank building. He visited many points of interest including the statue of Bismarck on which fresh flowers are laid daily, he said.

The speaker said he left the city of Berlin, bade farewell to Germany and returned to England.

History is being used in practically all European countries as a subterfuge for revenge and the time is coming when the slate has got to be cleaned, declared the clergyman.

DEFER GAME HERE

Dr. E. H. Brooks, president, announced that a message had been received from Madison to the effect that the Rotary baseball team had postponed its trip to Appleton because of the threatening condition of the weather. He announced also the Rotary club will meet with the Lions club next Monday noon in place of the regular Tuesday meeting.

Hoffman's Peacock band, now playing an engagement at a local theater furnished music during the luncheon.

RAIL MEN, COUNCIL CONFER ON SAFETY

Closing Of Dangerous Crossings Is Urged By Company's Representatives

Representatives of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway company met the common council in a special informal session in the council chambers of the city hall Wednesday morning to discuss safety measures at railroad crossings.

The railroad officials presented to the aldermen their plan of eliminating certain dangerous crossings, suggesting to the city that it barricade streets at such crossings. One of the dangerous crossings referred to is that at Winnebago and Union-sts.

Use of the wigwag signals was greatly emphasized by the railroad representatives. This system was valued more than the flagman system, on the ground that it is more methodical and accurate.

"Gym" And Pool Are Biggest Attractions Of Y.M.C.A. Members

Added Facilities This Year Will Increase Total Of 65 Per Cent Of Members Now In Physical Department

That Appleton men and boys who are members of the Y. M. C. A. find the physical department one of its biggest assets to them is evidenced by the fact that 65 per cent of the membership which was entitled to the physical department facilities made use of them. This year with the addition of the new handball court and the arrangement of the addition above the swimming pool it is expected that even a larger percentage of the membership will avail itself of the opportunity to keep physically fit.

Handball and volleyball proved two of the favorite forms of exercise for the Appleton men who were members of the Y. M. C. A. last year. More than 80 men are regular participants in the handball activity and since the larger room has been made available for them, the activity undoubtedly will increase.

The swimming pool into which 1,000 men plunge each month has always been one of the biggest attractions which the building has for men and boys. There is scarcely a boy in the gymnasium classes who does not take a swim as soon as his class is over. Many men come in several times a week for a swim.

Throughout the year the physical department sponsors many events which are valuable to the community. Last year 125 men and boys were taught to swim. Little has been done with the methods of life saving up to this time but arrangements will be made this year to have a regular Red Cross life saving corps established here.

Through the cooperation of the Y. M. C. A. department, soccer football, baseball and basketball leagues are established for the boys in the grade schools. The interest in these leagues and the splendid sportsmanship which they foster are among the best things which can be offered to school boys.

An annual city tennis tournament is a feature also of the physical department. This year there are 20 entries who are playing for the city championship. The industrial baseball leagues are fostered by the Y. M. C. A. with George Packard as the president of the leagues.

Such physical department privileges as are given to Appleton men and boys through the Y. M. C. A. are the ones which are prohibited because of their cost in private clubs. In the larger cities where many expensive clubs thrive, the Y. M. C. A. has been able to give similar advantages to those of less means at a much smaller rate.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Weissgerber and son, formerly of Appleton, have moved temporarily from Los Angeles to Bernicia, Calif., according to correspondence received from them by William H. Zuchlik.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Treiber, son Edward and daughter Josephine 1235 Lawrence-st. and Miss Ethel Horn, autoted to Oshkosh Wednesday.

City cars are of a smaller type and will continue to be operated by one man, but with greater convenience than with the old outboard vehicle. They are of the pay-as-you-enter kind with safety folding door and step. Entrance will be made at the front. These cars will seat a liberal number and will prove more comfortable than the sideseat ones now in use. They also are built so they ride with greater ease.

Two city cars will be used as at present, but will make fast enough time, the company believes, so they may render double the present service, or a 15-minute schedule instead of the half hour one. The arterial highways and the cooperation of the public are expected to help accomplish this. These cars will be put into service

ESCANABA MAN COMES HERE AS SOO OFFICIAL

George W. Kennedy of Escanaba has been appointed roadmaster of the Soo line with headquarters in Appleton to succeed H. P. Wood, who goes to Rhinelander as roadmaster to succeed P. H. Flatley. Mr. Kennedy and his family will arrive in Appleton within the next few days to make this city their home.

Immediately, Mr. Ellis says, but the schedules will not be changed until about Sept. 25. This will give the train employees time to accustom themselves to the new apparatus and an opportunity to try out the speed requirements for the more rapid service.

An announcement will be made shortly, but the Appleton schedule probably will be affected very little, except for the frequency of local service.

Fourteen cars were maintained by the company here in the past. Eight of these are being shipped to Milwaukee and some of them already are on their way. They will be used on the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company lines. That company is rebuilding its older cars into 3-truck vehicles, and the Appleton cars will be used in this manner also. Two cars are joined at the vestibules and one set of trucks is placed where the two ends meet. These then are operated as one car, with side entrances at the middle of each, and requiring one motorman and two conductors.

Great progress has been made recently in the methods of protecting insurance after it is paid.

One of these methods is to place the insurance in trust with a trust company.

The money received from the policies, when they are paid, is held by the trust company and invested in sound securities. The income is paid to the family regularly. Sometimes extra amounts, when illness or other emergencies occur, are paid by the trust company, depending on the agreement.

TABLEAUX WILL SHOW HOW STATE HAS DEVELOPED

Products Exposition At Milwaukee To Show Farming And Industrial Growth

Milwaukee—Seventy years of Wisconsin's industrial and agricultural development will be portrayed in tableaux at the second annual Wisconsin products exposition, at the city auditorium, Milwaukee, Dec. 1 to 8.

In making this announcement, the executive committee in charge of the exposition, stated it was the aim of the exposition not only to furnish an opportunity for bringing together the agricultural and industrial interests of the state, in presenting a vivid picture of the diversified natural resources and productive power of the commonwealth, but also to bring out in a peculiarly effective way the historical background of Wisconsin in industrial endeavor.

Short, effective, historical tableaux, representing different historical episodes in the growth and development of the various communities through out the state will be staged, according to the announcement.

Floor plan arrangements for the exposition call for the grouping of agricultural, dairy and industrial products according to industries, ranked by the direction of their products in the last census figures.

Agricultural products and the dairy industry will be given space in the first half of the central area of the main area floor. The remainder of the main arena will be utilized for lumber and timber products including furniture, food products, meat, packing, canning, preserving, flour and grain items and mines and quarry products.

The mezzanine floor is to be given over to a portrayal of Wisconsin vacation land with accompanying equipment in the form of camping tackle and so forth.

In carrying out the idea of presenting a real picture of the diversified natural resources and productive power of the state of Wisconsin, John E. Miller, director of the exhibition, is supervising the construction of a scenic setting in the form of a panorama, which will encircle the entire main arena of the auditorium and will present pictures of Wisconsin's resources, of historical episodes, and will enable the spectator coming into the building to get a complete picture of Wisconsin, from the north to the south.

FRANCES BRAYTON GOES TO MADISON

Appleton Woman Will Become Secretary Of Public Welfare Association

Miss Frances Brayton, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. F. C. Brayton, 6 Brookview, will leave Appleton soon for Madison where she will take up her duties Oct. 1, as secretary of the Public Welfare Association of that city. She will succeed Miss Jeanette Davis, who recently was awarded a scholarship by the New York School of Social Service and will take up her studies in that institution.

Miss Brayton has been an active Red Cross worker for several years and has held various executive positions in social welfare organization. For two years she was commissioner of the poor for Winnebago county and at another time held a position with a city organization in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Last summer Miss Brayton conducted classes in Red Cross social work for a time in Madison and while there became familiar with conditions

HERE'S NEW RESULT OF HAVING GOOD UNIVERSITY

Madison—The classic old expression about "casting bread upon the waters" has bubbled up in Wisconsin.

Four carloads of Badger Guernseys are on their way to the state of Maryland. They were purchased in Grant county with County Agent J. B. Keenan and the cow testers of the county operating.

Two years ago Basil Mobley, Maryland, graduated from the Wisconsin college of agriculture. The purchaser of two of these newly acquired cars of Guernseys was this young man's father.

"Critics often point out the fact that the Badger state is spending its money educating young men from other states," says R. A. Moore. "The bread which was cast upon the waters is returning to Wisconsin in the form of good cash."

KAUKAUNA HAS MOST UNPAID DOG TAXES

Notices are being sent from the office of John A. Lonsdorf, district attorney, to all dog owners who are delinquent in paying their dog taxes. The total number of delinquents in the county is a little less than 100, and most of them are in Kaukauna. A majority of the tax districts had no delinquents, whatever. Those who fail to pay their dog tax now are subject to prosecution.

NEW YORK PASTOR HELD ON EMBEZZLING CHARGE

By Associated Press
New York—The Rev. Paul Reneke, pastor of the Ridgewood Apostolic church, was under arrest Tuesday charged with grand larceny by Mrs. Margaret Trinkle and Mrs. Barbara Stern. They assert he failed to make an accounting of the extension fund to which they had contributed $2,000 each.

'Dead' Letters Earn Uncle Sam $100,000 Sum

Hundreds of letters are forwarded to the dead letter office at Washington on account of illegible or faulty addresses, according to Postmaster William H. Zuehlke. Reports from the United States postal department also show an alarming increase in this class of mail.

Of the 200,000,000 pieces of mail deposited in the mail boxes throughout the country in 1922, there were 17,000,000 which were shipped to the dead letter office because of mistakes and carelessness in addressing. When this mail was opened in an effort to get a clue of the addressee, it was found to contain a total of more than $100,000 in cash.

Letters containing money or other valuables should be registered and packages should be insured to be sure of safe delivery.

Paid post that cannot be identified is auctioned off in a dead letter sale. The articles are sold in lots and the most persons are in the dark as to what the articles contain. One great box labeled "Cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and snuff" was filled to the brim. Other packages contained suits, auto mobile robes, golf outfits, eyeglasses, handkerchiefs.

Every effort is made, however, to locate the addressee or sender. Letters containing no valuables are burned. Money contained in the letters swells the department's revenue. Addresses are often rubbed off on poorly wrapped parcels or on pencil addressed letters. The most mistakes are made around Christmas time.

EVERYTHING NEW IN PROGRAM OF VICTOR ARTISTS

Booked in again! The "Eight Popular Victor Artists" these pleasing entertainers who were brought here last season by Wm. H. Nolan. They are to return under the same local management to the Lawrence Memorial chapel on Thursday, Sept. 27.

Everything on this year's program will be new except the artists themselves. Henry Burr is with them and his tenor voice is said to be better than ever, probably due to the fact that he regularly gives his vacation periods to rest and careful study. Albert Campbell, another tenor of the group, is famous for his duet work with Burr. John Meyer, baritone, and Frank Croxton, bass, will be heard in new selections and will unite with Campbell and Burr to form the Peerless Quartet. The Sterling Trio, composed of Campbell, Burr and Meyer will also be programmed for several "Harmony" selections.

Billy Murray will be on hand with his "million-dollar smile," and will have his original humorous ways of introducing the artists. In addition to acting as interlocutor, Murray will sing several of the latest comical ditties. Monroe Silver, monologist, has a store of new "Cohen" stories and comedy songs, and will cause many laughs during the evening. The instrumental part of the program will be handled by Rudy Wickett, saxophonist, and Frank Banta, pianist and accompanist, both of whom have demonstrated their ability to please and entertain.

The program will be announced in a few days.

SWEET POTATOES RAISED WITH SUCCESS IN COUNTY

That sweet potatoes can be raised successfully in Outagamie county was demonstrated this year by Mrs. William Gens of Grand Chute. She started out with 25 hills of the southern plants by way of experiment. The potatoes when dug proved to be of an average weight of three quarters of a pound. Some weighed about a pound. The potatoes are of good quality and have a smooth skin. Next year Mrs. Gens plans to raise sweet potatoes on a more extensive scale.

THE KU KLUX KLAN

During the past few weeks there has been a representative of the Ku Klux Klan in Appleton, seeking to organize a group of Klansmen in this city. Whether he succeeded or not, we do not know; but doubtless a goodly number of persons have listened to persuasive arguments and been more or less impressed. At the close of the Civil War, there was a similar organization in the South, developed to check the evils growing out of the carpet-bag regime; and since then we have had sporadic imitations in the "white caps" and "night raiders" and other organizations which have had a local and more or less temporary history. This new Klan seems to have swept the country and claims hundreds of thousands of adherents. It has been most active in the South and Southwest, but is now making great headway in the middle western states. It is claimed that the Klan is now coming into disfavor where it has been longest established, and that its power and membership are there rapidly declining. At the present time it has come into conflict with the administrative authorities of three states who are seeking to check its unlawful activities. In Oklahoma the governor has placed some counties under military surveillance, and says he will put the whole state under similar regulation, if it is necessary in order to stop the Klan's flogging and abuse of citizens. In Texas the governor has put the famous rangers on the trail of the hooded offenders of law and order; and in Georgia the governor has promised to call out the state militia if there is a continuation of Ku Klux atrocities.

There are doubtless many good men in the organization who feel they are furthering the cause of right and justice. They have seen the failure of the courts in many cases to administer justice; they have seen officials smile at bootleggers and wink at private distillers; they have seen road-houses ruining young boys and girls by harboring vice and drunkenness; they have heard the cries of wives beaten and children abused; and have honestly felt that the best way to check crime and immorality is for a group of citizens, believing in good order, to join together to administer justice where the law seems to them to be breaking down.

But, however good may be the intentions of some klansmen, and, however real may be some of the wrongs they purpose to right, the Klan as an organization is vicious, dangerous, criminal, and deserves no place in our community life. The following are some of the most serious accusations against it.

First. It encourages lawlessness, and thus defeats the ends for which it was organized. Its method is that of mob law; and, if generally practiced, would lead to social chaos. If one group of citizens can take the law in its own hands, so can any other group that thinks it has a grievance. This meant the substitution of lawlessness for order. The courts may be slow in administering justice; but the remedy is to reform, not attempt to supplant them. We are in a world where men's opinions differ vastly. Some believe in our capitalistic system, and others believe the system to be unjust and oppressive. Does this permit a group of J. W. W.'s, for example, under cover of the night, to flog capitalists and dynamite their industrial plants? They have as much right to do so as has the Ku Klux Klan to substitute force for the orderly processes of law. Mass morality is anarchy, for it substitutes mass action for the legal system of the state.

Second. The Ku Klux Klan is un-American; for its existence, in large part, is due to prejudice and hatred of certain classes of our citizens. It is anti-Catholic, anti-Jew, anti-Negro and anti-alien. The Klansmen easily become excited when discussing any of the above mentioned classes. He is especially bitter against the Roman hierarchy, and sees the country threatened by the Catholic advance. He is equally sure that the Jew is getting the purse strings of the country into his hands and will commercially crowd the American to the wall. In short, he is ruled by a fanatical emotion rather than by rational judgment. What he thinks he can accomplish by developing class hatred, we do not know; but he should realize that in a democracy every citizen has equal rights, regardless of race, religion, or color. Nothing could be more destructive of our peace and prosperity as a nation, than for an organization to gain great power whose secret purpose is to curtail the rights and liberties of classes of citizens who differ from it in belief or racial affiliation.

Third. The Klan is unjust, for it accuses and punishes without trial. Every citizen has the right of self-defense, and the greatest travesties of justice will occur when this is denied. We all know how difficult it is to ascertain the facts and administer justice when every opportunity is given to investigate a given case; and certainly a mob, with no chance to look carefully into the evidence, but usually acting on report or suspicion, is not qualified to administer just punishment. No man is safe where lynch law prevails. An enemy or a gossip may start reports which, enlarged by repetition, may lead to drastic Klan action, when there is no truth whatever in the rumors. Such organizations terrorize communities, lead to mutual suspicion, and destroy that community confidence and unity which is necessary to social well being and individual happiness.

Fourth. The Klan's methods are cowardly. Its members are sworn to secrecy; they are initiated in a garb that conceals their identity even from their fellow members; they go forth to execute their judgments in the dark; and their relation to the organization is known only to themselves and a few trusted officials. This in itself is sufficient condemnation of the Klan. A man is a coward who in hooded garb and under the cover of the night does what he is unwilling to do in public and in the light of day. Why is the costume worn? Why this secrecy? Because the Klansman fears to have his identity known, and fears it because he realizes he is performing acts criminal before the law. It is a method of escaping the consequences of illegal acts. It is the kind of thing which shoots a man from under cover, or stabs him in the back. It is always cowardly for a man to be unwilling to face the results of his doings.

But, says the Klansman, there is no other way of having justice done, and the end justifies the means. But there is another way. There is the legal method of making complaint to the officers of the law, and having the offender brought to justice. There is the manly way of making public accusation. If the case is not one where a man can be convicted under law, it is not a case bad enough to merit mob violence. There are few things more cowardly than for a considerable number of men in hooded garb to fall upon a defenseless individual and beat him almost or quite into insensibility, and especially when he has had no chance to make his defense or offer resistance. We cannot see how any respectable man can engage in such unjust procedure. Dishonest and vicious men will always conceal their faces and do their work in the dark; but reputable citizens should come into the open and not be afraid to act in the presence of all honest men.

Chorus girls need more than an eye for the buskers, much more.

A vanilla flavored lipstick makes one taste good enough to eat.

Nothing looks better on a girl than a bathing suit; but not, however, absolutely nothing.

Maybe Dempsey and Firpo eat nails for dinner and hold up their socks with thumb tacks.

We don't know what is all the rage in fall styles unless it is those who pay the bills.

You can trust some people out of your right. You can't trust others until they are out.

THE CARBOHYDRATE PROBLEM

The recent fall in wheat gave rise to a movement, fanned by the bakers and supposedly approved by the wheat farmers, to persuade the public to "eat more bread." The sponsors figured that if each person were to eat one more slice of bread a day all concerned would benefit.

If there is one kind or class of food material which practically everybody in America already consumes in ample if not excessive quantity, it is carbohydrates, that is, bread as well as cereals (breakfast foods), potatoes, cakes, pastries, candies, sweets and sugar. Confining the movement to bread and cereal is a little holler for it. But for health's sake don't start anything which may make adults consume more carbohydrate than they are now getting. For most adults, especially those who carry any excess poundage, carbohydrates are really a curse—though very palatable and enjoyable and the finest kind of good wholesome food. That's what makes the carbohydrates a curse; they are so darn easy to eat.

Once again I find myself taking great pleasure in agreeing with Professor McCollum of Johns Hopkins school of hygiene. The professor is exceedingly fond of milk; too fond of it, I sometimes think. He has cheered the hearts of milkmen all over the country by preaching the pre-eminence of milk as a basis of a healthful diet for the American people, which is all very well. McCollum's dictum is thoroughly sound, however. He urges more milk, more fruit and more salads (the leafy vegetables and relishes raw) and less bread, less cereals and less sugar in the diet. I commend the McCollum idea to every adult who finds himself eating too much flesh. It is good for what ails him bodily and mentally.

A slice of bread yields, roughly, 100 calories or about the same nutritive value as a glass of milk. It doesn't matter much what kind of bread it is. All breads are about equal in nutritive value, though some fat folks fatuously eat only one kind of brand of bread and imagine they can reduce that way.

People who already carry enough weight should go easily on carbohydrates at breakfast. Some fruit in season, of course. A cereal if you like, but not cakes or toast too, for they add to the carbohydrate load. A very suitable and sufficient breakfast for businessmen or professional men is fruit, a roll or a slice of toast or some fried yellow corn meal mush if one is going out to play, and coffee. For the ordinary day of putting around the office or store or riding about, fruit and coffee should suffice, at any rate for adults who are well nourished. Not for youngsters, however; the children should eat more than their elders because they are growing. Precocious girls should, ought to take less than their parents do; if they take the same amount of food that normal children require, they are likely to grow obese and soft and sickly.

What with bread, cake, ice cream, confections and the enormous per capita sugar consumption, we're just about caught up on carbohydrates and it would do us all good to McCollumize a bit.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Sterilizing a Brush
Please give the formula to be used to kill germs which may possibly be present in a shaving brush.

Answer—A 24 hour soaking of a new brush in a strong formalin solution (one part formalin to three parts water) with occasional agitation of the bristles to make certain that the solution reaches all the bristles, will destroy anthrax bacilli or any other germs. Before using the brush carefully and repeatedly rinse with water. Of course boiling half an hour on three successive days is the best way to sterilize anything.

Soft Drinks

Is it true that coca cola contains dope and if taken repeatedly will produce a habit?—S. L.

Answer—No. No dope in any of the popular beverages.

Wearing Glasses

I need glasses but am afraid to begin wearing them because I have been told you have to keep getting them stronger and stronger.—Miss T. O.

Answer—Young persons who need glasses, particularly near sighted persons, should begin wearing them early, to conserve the eyesight. It is a serious mistake to imagine that straining to see well without the glasses strengthens the sight, for it really impairs the sight and should therefore be avoided.

To the Editor: In the Milwaukee Sentinel of Sept. 12 we read that Ernest Rabbitz of Dale, was sentenced by Judge Guss of Oshkosh in municipal court for operating an automobile while intoxicated, to spend 25 days in jail and to pay a fine of $100, with 40 days more in jail if he failed to pay his fine. We read in the Appleton Post-Crescent of Sept. 14 that William Van Dyke of West De Pere was sentenced in municipal court in Appleton for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor to spend one day in jail and pay a fine of $10, together with court costs.

Is the menace of drunken drivers less in Appleton than in Oshkosh, or does the drunken driver deserve more mercy in Appleton than Oshkosh?

Is not Appleton governed by the same state laws as Oshkosh?

In making comparison with the different cities of Wisconsin, it seems to me, that Appleton imposes lighter sentences upon drunken drivers than most cities of Wisconsin. And why is it?

STUDENT'S DRUG "CURE" FAILS

Syracuse — Philo Chambers of Syracuse University has definite ideas on how to cure drug addicts. He differs from most persons by putting his ideas into practice.

For the first time it is learned, through a thesis he wrote for the degree of Master of Arts, Chambers "picked up" an addict and tried to cure him by taking him to a college fraternity house.

Chambers is a 1922 graduate of Syracuse. He investigated the eastern city's dope colony personally, working with the Red Cross. There he grew to know a drug "fiend" who had made several unsuccessful attempts to break himself of the habit.

Actual curbing of the habit is but the first step in permanent cure. Chambers believed. There remained the problem of readjustment, which involved creating within the victim the desire for higher ideals, an awakening of his responsibilities in life.

"It was realized it would be impossible again impracticable to keep him under guard indefinitely," Chambers says. "Sooner or later he must associate with others which would depend upon his environment and future desires."

"University surroundings carried a different atmosphere than he had ever before experienced. The fellows made him feel at home. Never once did they mention his past."

But Chambers goes on to explain that out of his entire observation he failed to find a permanent cure. The man whom he took to the frat house kept away from the drug for a year.

Then he left Syracuse, and in Buffalo soon was again "on the dope."

ALDERMEN OPPOSE PAYMENT OF BILL TO DECORATE CITY

Lively Discussion Occurs When Pageant Promoters Submit Request

Kaukauna.—By a vote of 5 to 4 at its adjourned meeting Tuesday evening in the council chambers, the city council rejected a motion asking that the expense of decorating the city for the homecoming week be paid from the treasury and added to the tax roll. The question was brought up by Alderman W. H. Cooper and the motion was made by Alderman Brill and seconded by Alderman Stoecker.

There followed a lively debate in which the pros and cons of the question were discussed, those against the matter arguing that inasmuch as the council was not asked before the celebration to share part of the expenses, it did not feel so inclined now.

Those in favor of the motion answered that the pageant committee had hoped to clear all expenses, not only for the pageant but for the homecoming celebration which was an entirely separate affair from the pageant, and failing to the extent of only a few hundred dollars had called upon the city fathers to continue the spirit which had been aroused as a result of the gala event and settle a bill which would make it unnecessary to call at all upon the guarantors who pledged to financially back the celebration in case of failure.

The issue was one of the liveliest which has been up before the council for some time. In the end, however, a vote was taken which resulted as follows: Yes, Aldermen Brill, Cooper, Stoecker and Wiggins; No, Aldermen Berndt, Doering, Hurst, A. Ludtke, Wittman absent, A. Ludtke.

Later during the meeting, City Attorney Joseph W. LaFerre who was absent when the question was settled, took the floor and registered what might be termed a "bawling out" to the council for its actions and asked that the motion at least ought to be reconsidered and held over for the next meeting. Parliamentary rules require that a motion to reconsider a question may be made by a member of the side which wins and as no one attempted to revive the matter, it was closed permanently.

BOOK SHEBOYGAN FOR LEGION GAME
Kaukauna Football Season Will Open With Home Contest Sunday, Sept. 30

Kaukauna.—On the heels of the departure of the baseball season in Kaukauna will come the opening of the football season. The first game of the year for the local American legion team will be played at the ball park on Sunday, Sept. 30 with Sheboygan.

The plebskin game has increased in popularity in this city in the last few years and expectations are that the games will be well patronized this season.

Manitowish has been signed up for the following Sunday while negotiations are being made with a team in a nearby city for the third battle of the year. The large squad of candidates started its second week of practice Monday evening on the playground.

The bunch will consist of two good teams which, under the direction of W. F. Ashecoach, are drilling on the rudiments of the game. The men are rapidly losing superfluous flesh and are getting into shape to stand the hard knocks.

Among those who are back in the fold and among those who are just starting with the team but who have had good experience are Fred Schrad, who played the backfield with the team for two years and was the most consistent open field runner on the squad, "Red" Smith, who played guard on the Lawrence college football team last year and his brother Les, who played a good game with the legion team a year ago.

ENGINEER URGES KAUKAUNA TO BUILD LASTING BRIDGES

Council Is Told Value Of Concrete Or Steel For Condemned Structures

Kaukauna.—John Geist, representative of Hoel, Johnson and Whitney, consulting engineers of Milwaukee, addressed the common council at its meeting Tuesday evening in the council chambers and explained the advantage of building bridges with concrete and steel wherever possible. The two lower bridges in this city have been condemned and will have to be rebuilt in the near future. The company which Mr. Geist represents drew sketches of possible bridges to replace the old ones about a year ago. The average life of a bridge is about 50 years, it has been found throughout the United States, Mr. Geist said. Besides that, there is an annual loss of three to four per cent in upkeep and repairs. For that reason, the engineer said, the most economical way to build bridges will be to construct them in a permanent way of concrete and steel. Bridges of that type are so permanent, he said, that it is sometimes necessary to blow them up to remove them. The cost of repairs is practically nothing.

The speaker also advised that when the city builds its bridges it secure the services of an engineer rather than those of a contracting company.

COUNCIL TAKES NO ACTION ON BAND
Kaukauna.—Musicians of the city who are endeavoring to organize a band for next summer received no satisfaction as to the attitude of the common council when the matter was brought before the city fathers by Alderman Brill at an adjourned meeting of that body Tuesday evening.

Alderman Brill, as a representative of the musicians, said that the attempt to create a band for summer concerts and other community affairs will be successful here if the city can furnish a guarantee that the musicians will be reimbursed for their efforts in part at least.

There are about ten persons in Kaukauna who still are actively engaged in playing their band instruments and about twenty more who have thrown theirs into a corner due to the lack of band encouragement in this city. It will require about all winter to rouse all the local talent and whip into shape for next summer, Mr. Brill said. His message from those who are planning the venture was that the band will be able to furnish a series of 12 concerts for $1,000.

Alderman Cooper, who has frequently attempted to arouse band interest rose to state that every city worthy of a name has a band which furnishes entertainment for its citizens. His opinion was that the band should proceed to organize and he expressed his belief that the council ought to appropriate money for concerts. No one followed up his talk, however, and a motion to adjourn was made a moment later.

It is expected the matter will be brought up again soon.

Social Items

Kaukauna.—Officers were elected at a meeting of Holy Cross court, No. 392, Catholic Order of Foresters, Monday evening in north side Forester hall. Louis J. Nys, state organizer, was present and gave an address relative to the membership drive which is being conducted by 11 courts in the Fox River valley. The officers elected are: Fred J. Miller, chief ranger; Louis Crestera, vice chief ranger; M. H. Niesen, past chief vice ranger; H. O. Haessli, recording secretary; H. O. Haessli, financial secretary; E. A. Brewster, treasurer; Magr. P. J. Lochman, spiritual advisor; Arthur Jones, speaker; L. E. Vandenberg, trustee.

William F. Ashe, president of the Kaukauna Rotary club, and Walter P. Hagman, secretary, left Wednesday afternoon by auto for Escanaba, Mich., where they will attend the annual convention of the Rotary presidents and secretaries of the tenth district. The men expect to be gone two or three days.

Mrs. John Merbach, Sr., returned Saturday from a week's visit at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Timm in Appleton. During her visit in Appleton Mrs. Merbach was guest of honor at a party which was attended by many of her friends.

Home from Hospital
Kaukauna.—Lewis Merbach has returned from Chicago where he was confined in a hospital for three weeks following an accident at the local Chicago and Northwestern railroad shops which resulted in the loss of one of his eyes. Merbach suffered from a piece of rust in his eye which resulted in complications, making necessary the removal of the optic.

ENROLMENT 57 IN VOCATION SCHOOL

Truant Officer Soon Will Begin Checking Up Those Who Have Not Entered

Kaukauna.—Enrolment at Kaukauna vocational school on Tuesday numbered 57 boys and girls, including both half time and part time students. Children under 15 years old who do not attend any other school do not seem to understand that they must register at vocational school and that sooner or later their names will be checked and they will be compelled to attend. No definite checkup can be made until a complete record of enrolment in the high school is obtained. After that, however, all children under the age limit will be gathered up by the truant officer.

The enrolment at present includes 9 half time girls and 3 half time boys; 16 part time girls and 23 part time boys. Part time students are required to attend school eight hours a week while half time students must attend two and a half days a week.

Preparations are being made by A. T. Hudson, director, for the opening of evening school on Monday, Oct. 1, which will be enrolment day. The following classes will be offered if there is enough demand for them: Machine shop practice, machine shop drawing, sewing, cooking, commercial courses, including typewriting and bookkeeping, shop mathematics and English.

AGE MAY BE BIG FACTOR IN 1924 POLITICAL RACE

All But Four Of Coolidge Predecessors Were Under 57 On Inauguration

being talked of on both the Republican and Democratic tickets for the presidency would be narrowed down to a few. Here are the ages of the various statesmen for the presidency as they would be on March 4, 1925 when the next presidential term begins:

LaFollette, 68 years 8 months; Pinchot, 59 years, 6 months; Senator Ralston, 58 years 3 months; John W. Davis, 51 years 10 months; Al Smith, 52 years 2 months; James M. Cox, 54 years 11 months; W. G. McAdoo, 52 years 6 months; W. J. Bryan, 63 years 1 month; Oscar Underwood, 62 years 10 months; Carter Glass, 67 years 1 month; Hiram Johnson, 53 years 5 months; Former Senator Kenyon of Iowa, 55 years 8 months; Henry Ford, 61 years 6 months.

Of the foregoing number only two men are younger than President Coolidge and they are both Democrats, Governor Al Smith of New York, and John W. Davis, of West Virginia, the latter of whom is the youngest of all the men mentioned for the presidency.

If fifty seven were the age limit for the inauguration of a president, only former Senator Kenyon of Iowa, James M. Cox, John W. Davis, Al Smith and Calvin Coolidge would come under that mark.

Most people do not realize that Henry Ford for instance, is past sixty or that the veteran Senator from Wisconsin, Robert M. LaFollette, has passed 68 and will be nearly 70 on March 4, 1925. Samuel Ralston, junior senator from Indiana, would be over 68 at the beginning of the next term.

The vigor of Theodore Roosevelt in the presidency has always been attributed by many of his friends to the fact that he was forty two, the youngest man to enter the White House in American history. At the end of his seven years he was only 49 which is below the age of all the candidates now being mentioned.

The burdens of the presidency are admittedly greater today than they were in the past. There is no doubt that both Warren Harding and Woodrow Wilson had the best of medical attention. The former was 55 years old when inaugurated and served less than three years. The latter was 56 years old and broke down at 63.

While many a man is stronger than his years, the politicians are wondering what the popular age will be of a comparison of ages if Mr. Coolidge, a relatively young man is the candidate against a man much older than he will be in March 1925, namely 52 and a half years.

NOTED EXPLORER DIES ABOARD SHIP

New York—Paul J. Rainey, noted explorer and big game hunter, died of a stroke of paralysis aboard the British steamship Saxon enroute from Southampton to Capetown, according to a radio received Wednesday from his sister, Mrs. Grace Rainey Rogers who was accompanying him to his ranch in Nairobi, British East Africa.

His body was buried at sea, the message said. The Saxon left Southampton Sept. 17, and was due at her destination Sept. 30.

Although he made extensive explorations and valuable scientific discoveries in the Arctic, bringing back many of the first captive specimens of animal life in the polar regions, Rainey probably will be best remembered as the first big game hunter of the tropics whose exploits were preserved in motion pictures.

SQUADRON CHIEF DENIES WRECK RESPONSIBILITY

DIVORCE SEPARATES MR. AND MRS. KNAPP

Mr. Knapp retains the custody of the eldest and youngest boys, while Mrs. Knapp was given the custody of another son. The couple was married in 1910.

Natives Of Hawaii Hear Rumbles Of Mount Kilauea, Famous Volcano

MT. KILAUEA

Hilo, Hawaii—Natives, mindful of the Japanese earthquake disaster, are looking fearfully at Mt. Kilauea, most famous volcano of the Hawaiian Islands.

Recently it has been very active. This is especially true since the quakes in Japan, and it indicates the extent of the subterranean upheaval that all but destroyed Yokohama and Tokyo.

Situated on the south slope of Mauna Loa, on the Island of Hawaii, Kilauea is three miles across. Quake experts some time ago predicted it was due for a violent and final eruption, and then would probably die out altogether.

Superstitious Hawaiians will tell you that when Kilauea erupts, Pele, goddess of volcanoes, is wrathful. Many beautiful stage dramas have been woven around Kilauea, which probably accounts for its widespread notoriety.

ENGINEERS SEEK CODE ALPHABET FOR USE IN RADIO

Universal Telegraphic Symbols Urged By Engineering Foundation

By Associated Press

New York—The establishment of a universal telegraphic alphabet is urged in a statement issued by the Engineering Foundation. Radio engineering is leading the peoples of the earth toward a common language, the foundation asserts.

Methods to simplify and expedite the electrical transmission of messages should be evolved through national legislation and international conferences. Science and commerce will not hesitate; is statecraft ready to perform its function? the foundation asks.

"There are ship lanes in the northern Atlantic," the statement continues. "Crowding automobiles in city streets have necessitated traffic lanes. Aviation is establishing lanes in the air. Allotting of lanes in the ether has become urgent."

General Squire in 1913 commenced investigations for improving transmission of the telegraph alphabet, according to the foundation, as the old Morse system failed to meet the needs of present day transmission. In the Morse code the current is interrupted between signals; with the redesigned system the current flows unintermittently.

"The new continuous wave system designed by General Squire," the foundation states, "can be applied to radio telegraphy. Variations for dots, dashes and spaces are reduced to the minimum on the theory that the least practicable change of the fundamental wave should be made. For easier reading the waves have been made square-topped."

"The modulating frequencies employed in the new method being of low order, it should be simple to devise instrumentalities to differentiate between them and the higher frequencies of 'static' or other natural disturbances. This new plan proposes to enter the unused infra-audio range, not only adding a useful band of frequencies, but one below the range of the human ear. If employed for telegraphy this band could not interfere with radio telephony receiving."

"National legislation and international conferences are now in order," the foundation declares in conclusion. "To put into use these methods of relief to establish this simple universal alphabet. Radio engineering is leading the peoples of the earth toward a common language, a mutual understanding."

HEIRS PLOW UP FARM IN SEARCH FOR BURIED CASH

By Associated Press

Refina, Sask. — Ten years ago a farmer, Norman Curtis, arrived from Iowa, and settled with his family near Langbank, Sask. He brought $5,000 cash with him, paid $1,500 down on his farm, and being a non-believer in banks, buried the remaining $3,500 in a field, telling no one, not even members of the family, where it was concealed. During the winter of 1913 he was frozen to death and with him died the secret of the hiding place of the money.

NO EXPULSIONS YET FOR HAZING

Dr. Plantz Believes Students Are Obeying Edict—Fountain Busy, However

That four sophomores have been expelled from Lawrence college for participating in hazing of freshmen was emphatically denied by Dr. Samuel Plantz, president of the college on Wednesday morning. Rumors concerning the amount of fighting between the two classes and the number who had found the water in the fountain in City park rather cold were greatly exaggerated, according to the college president. Dr. Plantz said that his request to refrain from the hazing of the new students had been received kindly by the second year men and that he was informed that there had been little activity so far.

Demonstrations of class spirit put on by the new students on Tuesday evening led townspeople to believe that there had been much battling. It is understood from upperclassmen that the number who were put in the fountain on Monday evening was 11 and that a smaller number took their baths in the fountain on Tuesday evening.

It is believed by the upperclassmen who are only an interested audience for the troubles of their younger schoolmates that the letter from Dr. Plantz to the sophomores has made any organized gang action unlikely. The feeling on the campus is that things have been pretty quiet, but the feeling in the city is that there has been considerable activity. The college students say that things are much less animated than they were last year.

TWO ORDINANCES BEFORE COUNCIL

Regular Session Tonight Also Will Consider Coal Bids And Rail Safety

Two proposed ordinances may come up for consideration at the meeting of the common council Wednesday evening. One is an ordinance submitted by the retail division of the chamber of commerce changing the license fees of transient merchants and peddlers and the other is an arterial highway ordinance. Both were ordered published at the previous meeting.

Bids from retail coal dealers of the city quoting the prices on hard and soft coal will be opened at Wednesday's meeting. The council may also take some action on the Chicago and Northwestern Railway company's proposal of eliminating certain crossings. Reports from various standing committees will be made.

TWO SPEEDERS FINED ON BAYER'S COMPLAINT

Two more speeders, both arrested by Joseph Bayer, city motorcycle officer, were fined the usual $10 and costs by Judge A. M. Spencer in municipal court Wednesday morning. Arthur Muenster, 357 Commercial-st., was driving 30 miles an hour Tuesday evening on College-ave, and Edward Kaphingst, route 6, Appleton, was driving at the rate of 28 miles an hour on Winnebago-st. Muenster is only 25 years old.

FUNNY MOVIE COP HELPS MAKE PEOPLE DISRESPECT LAW

Los Angeles Police Chief Appeals To Screen Magnates To Stop Practices

By Associated Press
Los Angeles—"Comic movie cops foster crime."
This is the deliberate conclusion of August Vollmer, famous police chief, who has just taken over the Los Angeles department. His assertion is based on close study of motion pictures as they affect public psychology and morals.

He has appealed to certain film producers to stop presenting policemen invariably as numbskulls, maintaining that every time an audience laughs at a copper's disfigurement, the forces of vice strengthen. "What he says is interesting because Vollmer is conceded to be one of the nation's foremost criminologists, and because he is opposed to film censorship."

"In digging for the roots of crime," declares Vollmer, "modern criminologists find disrespect for law endangered in adults and children by the caricature of policemen in movie comedies."

"A certain brand of film cops, with their ridiculous antics and their utter failure to cope with screen malefactors, have been a nation-wide force in making all guardians of law seem absurd and incompetent."

"PINHEADS"
"With some 10,000,000 persons daily attending movies, and with practically every elegant comedy where police figures showing them in an undignified light, the result is obvious. Practically all youngsters and many adults get a humorous contempt for officers symbolizing the law."

"Movie comedy directors who make game of police are pinheads, and without realizing it, enemies of organized society. To make a laughing stock of those whose business it is to maintain social order is to encourage social disintegration."

"Books, plays and movies which depict criminals in alluring roles go far toward creating a mawkish sentimentality for them. And the sooner society realizes that most criminals are far from intelligent, romantic or even picturesque, the better. It's time the public was impressed with the fact that it is its own crime pitfalls by romancing over crooks."

"Great drama, which treats of crime, does so with relentless verity which robs crookdom of its superficial glamor. Furthermore, such plays appeal to an intelligent element seldom involved in crime. Most criminals are sick men, pathological cases, about as romantic as a man with a loathsome disease."

RETRIBUTION
Of course, the obvious answer of some of the lambasted film producers is that the serious efforts of some cops to maintain order and interpret the law are as ludicrous as any comedy representations.

Clergymen were for a time lampooned by the movies, until in sheer self-defense perhaps, they retaliated by pinching the other foot with censorship.

Farmers, always represented as "hayseeds" and yokels, show some signs of turning on their movie tormentors.

Plumbers, barbers, housemaids have their score to settle when they find a spokesman.

Even newspapers have shown a lack of humor in viewing their idiosyncrasies as paraded in comedies.

If now the cops are going to get on their car, who's going to be the goat of the movie jokesmiths? The actors and producers themselves? Plenty of material there, at any rate, and they ought to be able to take their own iconoclastic medicine, many here think.

WOOD ALCOHOL CLAIMS VICTIMS IN GERMANY
By Associated Press
Berlin—Wood alcohol has claimed the lives of at least 18 German drinkers within the past few months, although neither prohibition nor bootlegging prevail here. This type of spirits is used widely in industry and science, and the victims have been laborers who believed they were getting cheap drinks by consuming small quantities of the liquid that remained in tank cars after unloading.

At Hamburg some time ago a large number of harbor truckers became seriously ill from drinking wood alcohol and ten of them died. A few days ago five more victims were reported from Prussian Silesia, and three from Berlin-Grunewald.

Repeated warnings have been issued by employers and authorities against the deadly and blinding effects of the chemical as a drink.

Constitution Simply Can't Be Dry Topic To Embryo Statesmen

High School Pupils Find Civic Study Fascinating By Law Building Method — Anniversary Program Occurs Friday

While much attention has been directed toward the study of the constitution of the United States because the week beginning Sept. 17 is set aside as constitution week, few Appleton people know that the constitution is studied at Appleton high school in a most interesting way every year. Just to draw attention to the fact that Sept. 17 was the birthday of the constitution, an informal program will be put on at the school on Friday by the civics and history departments.

Not just one day a year is devoted to the study of the constitution, but a month of classes in American history is devoted to learning a great deal more about that document than most college educated persons of the present day know. On the whole, the reading of the constitution does not thrill a high school audience, but the participation in a constitutional convention will.

FRAME DOCUMENT
For four weeks, the students in American history are designated delegates to the convention which framed the document by which the United States is governed. Each student is elected a delegate from a particular state and by means of much reading and research he learns how this constitution would have wished him to vote on various problems which arise. If his state would have no definite stand to take, he is allowed to follow his own conclusions.

The teacher in these classes is also a delegate from a state and must abide by the rules which the body of delegates sets to govern itself, but he may and does take the lead in the presentation of material for debate. Because they must work through the problems which confronted the convention, the students get a greater background than a study of the document alone could give them. Such subjects as the character and ability of the signers of the constitution also are taken up; their educational qualifications are looked into; the lives of the leaders are studied; and representative men of the times who were not members are discussed.

MUST BE DIPLOMATS
While the students are studying the constitution they are also becoming parliamentarians because they must know how to get their points and the points of view of their states before the convention. The work in American history is given under the direction of E. W. Wells, whose plan for the study of the constitution has attracted considerable attention among teachers.

In the citizenship classes which also aim to acquaint the students with the fundamental law of the land considerable time is given to the study of the constitution. Parents in Appleton who think that their children are not being taught enough of the constitution may find it interesting to visit the classes when the convention of state's delegates is being held.

Cop's Bravery Wins Him Girl Saved As Wife

By Associated Press
San Francisco — Criminologists may be right in charging the blundering comic cop with encouraging crime—

But Patrolman Charles Mangels is living proof that the rewards a hero policeman gets the movies can also come in real life.

A "comic kop" may blunder in his work on the salloping tinny, but when the handsome young officer appears, you can bet he's going to do credit to policing by cleaning up the gangs, rescuing damsels, and finally, marrying the prettiest.

And that's Mangels' real life story. A gang of hoodlums were insulting Miss Elizabeth Godfrey when Mangels appeared. Single-handed, he beat up the whole gang. Love ripened and the rescued girl is now Mrs. Mangels.

But that is but one of Mangels' exploits. In 1921, he was decorated by the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children and honored by the Red Cross for rescuing a Russian girl who fell from a relief ship, into San Francisco Bay.

He has made other rescues of a thrilling order, and has been repeatedly awarded citations by the local police heads.

RUNAWAY COUPE
When I came up Lawrence street on my way to school about 1:45 Tuesday afternoon, I saw a Chevrolet coupe start going down the hill near Smith's livery. I ran in and told the man in the barn about it and one of the men ran out and stopped the car just as it had crossed the road. F. R.

DID SHE CRY OR RUN?
The little girl must have been in school the day that the new family moved into the white house down at the other end of the block. Friday night, as I was coming home from work, she held me up with "Do you want to know where you can get good apples, easy?" "Lead me to them," said I, as she fell into step beside me. "Here they are, right in back of this place," stopping before the white house down at the other end of the block. "I never saw you come home this way before, where do you live?" she asked. "Here," I said. F. D.

HOORAY FOR SCOUTING!
Last Saturday afternoon, while out in the yard, I noticed a scout leader and several scouts coming down Carver street. They stopped at a house for a drink of water and as they were leaving one of the boys noticed an apple tree and stopped to shake it. As he was putting the apples in his pocket his leader noticed him and made him pick up the apples and take them into the house and report to the owner what he had done. The boy didn't want to at first, but finally gave in. G. M. K.

THAT'S THE REGULAR ORDER
As I was leaving the public parking place across from Hotel Conway Sunday I chanced to look up at the hotel. There in the bedroom directly over the vestibule porch stood a man partly dressed. He evidently was much like the ostrich as he had the curtain pulled down, just so he couldn't see, but thinking that no one could see him, but with the light turned on he could be seen plainly. G. A. F.

CHINA IS ADOPTING INTENSIVE FARMING

By Associated Press
Washington — A remarkable development of intensive agriculture in China is shown by a special study of farming in that country, just completed by the Department of Agriculture.

China has more than 59,000,000 farmers, who, with their families, comprise 80 to 90 per cent of the nation's total population. Of a total area of more than 2,000,000,000 acres of land, about 212,000,000 acres are under cultivation, including 43,000,000 acres of wet lands used chiefly for rice production, and 16,000,000 acres for gardens and fruit orchards. China ranks first among the agricultural countries in the production of rice, tea, silk, soy beans and grain sorghums, the report says, and is second only to the United States in tobacco and possibly in wheat production also. On the average China produces more cotton for commercial use than Egypt and, including production for local use, nearly as much as British India.

BEG PARDON

Relatives of John Heldemann declare that he was not at Holy Angels church at Darboy Monday morning waiting for Miss Margaret Hertz, his intended bride who failed to come and is known to have left the community. It is said that he discovered her absence Sunday afternoon and cancelled the church ceremony that evening. The Post-Crescent report was based on information imparted by those who came to the church Monday for the wedding.

FARMING Notes from Outagamie-co

BY W. F. WINSEY
Darboy—Charles Grode recently threshed 20 bushels of red clover seed from 20 acres. The seed is of good quality but owing to the drought after the first cutting, the clover was very thin on the ground.

Mr. Grode has recently completed the building of a modern farmhouse.

Kaukauna, Route 4—Joseph Lehrer is cutting and putting in his alfalfa mixed crop of corn and sunflowers.

Greenville—A farmer living near a cheese factory raised a group of splendid looking calves this season on whole oats and whey. A breeder of purebred cattle who had raised his calves on fresh milk as it came from the cow, on seeing the whey calves said to the owner, "Your calves are in better condition than mine."

For growing and fattening hogs, for raising calves and for returning to the land a number of the important elements of fertilization, a large number of farmers in this vicinity are of the opinion that whey and skim milk are very important byproducts of the cheese factory and creamery provided they are sterilized to prevent the spread of bovine tuberculosis among farm animals. These farmers say that hogs fed on a small amount of bran in whey or skim milk, with corn, fatten a great deal more rapidly than do hogs fed corn and water.

Little Chute, Route 1—To Mrs. Martin Vissera and her daughter, Ella, belongs the honor of being the only two women builders of concrete sidewalks in Outagamie co.

These women do the excavating, set the frames, mix the concrete, pour it and finish the surface with the skill of experienced workmen. They are now connecting the house and the barn and the house and the road with concrete walks. If men can turn out a better concrete job than these women, the writer would like to see it.

Kaukauna, Route 4—Mrs. Mike Nytes says that her potato crop has been badly injured by the late frost and that a sort of pin worm is boring into the potatoes and destroying them.

Mrs. Nytes has noticed these worms in potatoes for several years. She says they are more active in new ground and rot than elsewhere. Thinking that the germs were preserved in the seed she treated her seed potatoes this spring with a solution of formaldehyde. This treatment

FINDS SAVING IN COST OF MAKING ELECTRICITY

By Associated Press
Washington — The United States is becoming an increasingly heavier user of electricity, but despite the mounting power totals, the consumption of fuel to produce it is decreasing in proportion. Geological survey figures show that the consumption of coal for that purpose in 1922 was only 2.5 pounds a kilowatt hour, as compared with 3.2 pounds in 1919. A total of 47,559,000,000 kilowatt hours was generated last year. Of this amount 35.1 per cent was generated by water power. New York leads the list of states in production, manufacturing 15.87 per cent of the total for the country. Other states in order are Pennsylvania, California, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Massachusetts and West Virginia.

had no noticeable effect. Mrs. Nytes, on account of her failure with the seed, now is of the opinion that the soil is infected or is the breeding place of the pests.

CLERKS SORT MAIL IN SPEEDING PLANE

London—A "flying mail train" is the latest type of airplane to be developed in England.

In the plane's mail chamber, says the Daily Chronicle's aeronautical expert, sorters will be able to carry on their work just as they might in a railway mail train. It will have a radius of 2,000 miles and will be able to stay in the air 24 hours without alighting. The crew in charge will be provided with regular sleeping quarters on board. They will, in fact, work in shifts while in the air, some of them sleeping while others are on duty in the control chamber.

If necessary, when flying at night or immersed in fog or cloud, the crew will be able to bring into play mechanisms which will endow the craft with the power of automatic self-balancing. The machine will virtually fly itself, and all the helmsman will have to do will be to keep it on a compass course by means of the rudder.

RED CLOVER SEED CROP 73 PER CENT OF YIELD YEAR AGO

Price Received Much Higher Than In 1922, Federal Report Shows

Although the 1922 red clover seed acreage in northeastern Wisconsin including Outagamie, as compared with that of 1922 was only 73 per cent, this section was the only one in the entire middle west to grant a 100 per cent per acre yield, compared with the previous year. These statistics are brought out in a report circulated by the hay, feed and seed division, bureau of agricultural economics, United States department of agriculture.

Red clover seed in northeastern Wisconsin was bringing growers $15.50 on Aug. 23, as compared with $11.90 on the same date last year. Clean seed yielded $17.40 per hundred pounds on Aug. 23, as compared with $13.25 on the same date in 1922. Alsike clover, on the other hand, had an acreage of 92 per cent in this region, as compared with the acreage of a year ago, and the yield per acre was $2 per cent more than a year ago. The price paid growers on Aug. 23 was $11.90 for country-run seed and $13.65 for clean seed, as compared with $10.80 and $12.05 a year ago. Alsike fared better in other middlewestern states this year, especially in point of yield per acre.

Although the supply of red and alsike clover seed in this country available for sowing this fall and next spring is considerably less than that of last year, the supply of red clover seed available for export to this country from European countries will be considerably larger than last year, for growing conditions in Europe were very favorable for clover seed.

Harvesting of the alsike clover seed crop was late this year, beginning between July 15 and Aug. 1 in Wisconsin. Shipments at 109 stations in the principal producing sections reported shipments of the 1922 crop of alsike aggregating 7,850,000 pounds, and estimated prospective 1923 crop shipments from the same stations at 4,705,000 pounds.

Red clover seed shipments from 229 stations in 1922 aggregated 17,560,000 pounds, while the prospective shipments of the 1923 crop from the same stations estimated at 5,657,000. Harvesting of the crop was about a week later than last year. Wisconsin fields were cut from Aug. 15 to 20, but harvesting did not become general until Sept. 1.

Winterkilling and generally unfavorable weather last summer and this spring were responsible for the marked reduction in acreage and yield of red clover seed. The production of the medium red clover is expected to be about 40 per cent, and that of the alsike at 70 per cent of the 1922 crop. Hot weather in early June was detrimental to the alsike clover seed crop.

SHE WORKS IN FIELDS OUT OF CHOICE

MRS. AUGUST KOEHLER OF DEER CREEK IS SHOWN ABOVE IN ONE OF HER MANY FARM DUTIES. SHE IS FEEDING CORN STALKS INTO AN ENSILAGE CUTTER.

By W. F. WINSEY

One of a number of Outagamie women who, while rearing a family, did her housework and worked in the fields all day in season is Mrs. August Koehler of Deer Creek township. But Mrs. Koehler is one of the few who from choice has continued field work from land-clearing days down to the present time.

To combine these arduous duties and to perform them successfully, Mrs. Koehler was and is guided by a daily, nightly and weekly program of her own invention.

In the morning of by-gone days she placed the breakfast on the stove and then went to the stables to help with the milking and chores. After these were done, she returned to the house and soon had breakfast ready for the family. Clearing the table, washing the dishes and placing the dinner in the oven were her next moves. After these monotonous duties were performed, she was ready to accompany the men to the woods or fields.

PREPARED MEALS TOO
At noon and at supper time, she was the first to reach the house and she quickly prepared and served the meals. After supper and the chores were done, usually late at night, she planned and prepared the meals for the day following, knit, spun, made and patched clothing and darned socks, long after the men had gone to bed and were in dreamland. On Sunday she did the baking and washing for the week and finished mending and making clothing.

In 1922 when Mrs. Koehler was ushered into her own home by her husband all but a few acres of the farm were covered with a heavy growth of virgin timber. To open a space for crops, Mr. Koehler felled trees and Mrs. Koehler helped him trim them and with a crosscut saw cut them into saw logs or cordwood. She helped pile the brush, dig out and pile stumps and after the land was cleared, plant the crops. In haying time she helped turn the grass to dry, raked it by hand into windrows, carried, tied in bundles, on her back from the marshes through water over knee deep to high land, loaded it on the wagon and stacked it or moved it away. At harvest time Mr. Koehler cradled the grain and Mrs.

Koehler did the raking and binding. She helped do the shocking and, when the time came, the loading and stacking.

In later years when machinery was introduced, Mrs. Koehler's work was easier, and consisted for the most part of driving a team hitched to a machine. She drove the seeder, the drag, the mow, the wagon and the reaper.

CHILDREN HELP NOW

As Mrs. Koehler's children grew up, they helped her do the housework. Mrs. Koehler was a conference with the department heads of neighboring states on this subject is anticipated within the near future.

People often are prone to sympathize with farmers for the long hours they put in and the hard work they do, in doing so, almost as often overlook the long days and nights with their ever recurring hardships cheerfully endured by farmers' wives. Especially does this oversight apply to the wives of the pioneers who with their husbands found Outagamie a wilderness and in the brief span of a human life reduced that wilderness to a hot-house of agricultural productivity. In noting what Mrs. Koehler has done and is doing now, one can get an idea of what other women have done and are doing on the farms.

ALFALFA WEEVIL FEARED BY STATE

Importation Of Hay May Bring
Dreaded Pest To Farms
In Wisconsin

Madison—The short hay crop this year and the expected importation of large quantities of baled alfalfa from the western state may result in the introduction of America's worst alfalfa pest into Wisconsin.

According to a statement issued by the state department of agriculture, the alfalfa weevil is the most injurious insect attacking this crop in the world. It is now at work in Utah, Idaho, and neighboring states, and is so bad that alfalfa fields in some districts are sprayed to kill the pests, as potatoes are sprayed for potato bugs here.

Since its discovery near Salt Lake City in 1904, the alfalfa weevil has spread about two hundred miles north and east into Colorado, Idaho and Wyoming, and west into Nevada, Oregon and California. Where it is numerous it completely devastates the fields.

The department's attention to the danger was called by Reld Murray, secretary of the Wisconsin Livestock Breeders association, who, while traveling in Idaho, wrote to Commissioner of Agriculture John D. Jones, Jr., as follows: "We find that there is a large amount of alfalfa weevil and that Oregon and some other states will not allow alfalfa from this section of Idaho to be shipped within their borders. . . . The insect is doing great damage here in many places and if it would thrive under our conditions it would cause an enormous loss to our state."

At the request of Commissioner Jones, Dr. S. B. Fracker, state entomologist, investigated and found that the alfalfa weevil was apparently thriving in climates like that of Wisconsin; also that shipments of alfalfa from the infected district could bring it in at any time.

A quarantine against the infested states is being worked out at the present time. The Wisconsin officials are attempting to arrange a uniform quarantine on the subject, to be adopted throughout the upper Mississippi valley and a conference with department heads of neighboring states on this subject is anticipated within the near future.

BELASCO STORY TURNS A UNIQUE DISTINCTION

"The Girl of the Golden West," a First National picture, produced by Edwin Carewe, which is to show at the Elito Theatre starting tomorrow for 3 days is one of the few works that enjoys the distinction of having been adapted to all branches of modern literary art. It has been produced on the stage, as an opera, published in book form and now makes its debut in motion pictures.

The original stage version was written and produced by David Belasco and was this famous producer's crowning success. In the original stage cast were Blanche Bates, Frank Keenan and Charles Richman.

Following the stage success it was novelized by Belasco and proved a "best seller." According to local book merchants, there is still a good demand for this celebrated novel, though it was published in 1910. Later the plot was used as a basis for an opera, by Puccini, and the original title retained. In this opera the last silver-throated Enrico Caruso had one of the most famous roles of his career.

The playwriting of J. J. Warren Kerrigan in the part made famous by Caruso in opera, Sylvia Breamer in the part Blanche Bates played on the stage and Russell Simpson in Frank Keenan's old stage characterization. Others in the screen version are Rosemary Theby, Wilfred Lucas, Nelson McDowell, Charles McHugh, Hector V. Sarno, Jed Prouty, Cecil Holland, Thomas Delmar, Sam Appel and Minnie Provost.

THREE PICTURES ON BIJOU
FEATURE BILL

A feature bill is offered patrons of the Bijou theater for tonight and Thursday, with three excellent pictures for each performance. "The Forbidden Valley," a Stuart-Blackton production is one of those fascinating screen stories that leaves the audience happily satisfied after seeing it, and declaring that it is one of the best they have witnessed in months. May McAvoy and Bruce Gordon lead the cast, and that in itself is enough to make the average theater goer want to see it.

The other pictures offered for tonight and Thursday are Leo Maloney in "Steel Shot Evidence," a semi-western picture, and Stan Laurel in "Under Two Jags." If you want a few good hearty laughs, don't fail to see Stan cut up in the latter comedy reel. It absolutely is the spice of the performance.

Madison — The state board of public affairs met with Governor Blaine Tuesday to consider the Teasdale bill requiring an investigation of the activities of state inspectors.

The bill contemplates, according to its provisions, that the board shall attempt to prevent duplication of work by state agents, eliminating as many inspection positions as possible. Plans for undertaking the investigation are expected to result from Tuesday's session.

What Is An "Independent?"

THE dictionary says:—An independent is one who exercises his own will or judgment without the guidance or control of others—whether in thought or some sphere of action.

In discussing the petroleum industry, the press and the public use the term "independents" to designate the competitors of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

The definition quoted exactly fits the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) as it neither owes nor acknowledges allegiance to any man or organization.

This clearly defines the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) as an "independent."

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is owned by 41,922 stockholders—not one of whom owns as much as 6% of the total stock.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is managed by a Board of Directors of ten men—every one of whom started in a comparatively humble capacity and earned his place on the Board by sheer ability. These men devote their entire time to the business of this Company.

While the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) neither owes nor acknowledges allegiance to any man or organization, it is proud to acknowledge its obligation—

First—to its stockholders who have invested their capital in the enterprise.

Second—to 27,000 loyal, earnest, hard-working employees, 10,000 of whom also are stockholders.

Third—to the 30,000,000 people in the ten Middle Western states who have come to look upon this Company as a leader in a highly specialized branch of essential industry.

Fourth—to those of our competitors who, with the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) are striving to make the oil business useful to all the people.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) tries earnestly at all times to discharge its obligation to these four groups in such a highly satisfactory manner as to reflect credit not only upon itself but upon the industry as a whole.

Mrs. Henry Sticheman's Early Experiences Are Example Of What Pioneering In This Locality Meant to Immigrants

BY W. F. WINSEY

Louise Turner, a German girl, arrived at Watertown from the old country in the early 50's at the age of eight years amid much hardship in her family. The family had exhausted its financial resources on the trip and had no way of obtaining the necessities of life. The father, whose vitality had been reduced on the voyage across the sea, by giving his allotted rations to younger members of the family and going without food himself soon became a martyr to his poverty and generosity, and left his family among strangers totally helpless. Because in his mental aberrations he was constantly calling for food when there was none to give him, his daughter believes that hunger had more to do with her bereavement than illness.

However that may be, after the father was removed, the family had nothing to eat, says Mrs. Henry Sticheman of New London, formerly Louise Turner. Excited by the thought of a better life, she brought to the house by kind-hearted neighbors almost as poverty-stricken as the Turners themselves. After eking out a scant existence in Watertown a few years the family moved into New London and settled on wild land—a 40-acre tract now owned and occupied by William Frank.

The mother had married again but poverty and hunger pursued the family. No tools nor oxen were at hand to clear the land but corn and potatoes had been brought from Watertown for seed. Because there was no open space, the corn and potatoes were planted around stumps. The family lived on corn meal until the first crop of potatoes was ripe. Unable to stand the exposure, hardship and scant food of her home, the mother soon left Louise as her father did in Watertown. Losing both her parents was bad enough but Louise's troubles were aggravated by life with her stepfather. But she was destined to see brighter days.

Gibbert Sticheman embarked at Bremen for a voyage to America, landed in New York, proceeded to Buffalo by way of the Erie canal, took boat at Buffalo for Milwaukee and reached Watertown by ox team in 1848. In his family which accompanied him was a son, Henry, 14 years of age.

The father worked at the mason trade three years in Watertown and the son stayed until he had learned the harness trade. Soon after the father had decided to become a farmer, he started from Watertown with a yoke of oxen for the wilderness north of New London, arrived in due time and took up his abode with his family in a deserted logging shanty located on the farm now occupied by his grandson, Frederick W. Sticheman. At the time of Gibbert's arrival at the logging shanty, Mr. Nichols, Mr. Law and Mr. Kraike were the only settlers who had preceded him and there were only two log buildings, one of them a store, and the other a dwelling on the site of the city of New London.

By crossing the river at New London on a scow, the family reached the logging shanty, but they were handicapped by having no tools with which to clear the land and an insufficient supply of provisions to last over winter. To save them from starvation, Henry, who was earning money in the harness trade set out from Watertown to the home of his parents with a load of provisions on his back and what money he had left after the purchase. By following the short cuts made by Indian trails and maintaining a dog trot the entire distance, Henry made the first and all succeeding trips in two days. With the money that Henry brought, his father went down the Wolf river, through Lakes Payman and Butte des Morts to Oshkosh to buy flour. In a canoe, Henry's trips on foot from Watertown to the logging shanty and his father's trips by canoe to Oshkosh, were the only means of support the family had for several years in the woods.

SON HELPED

After the father had induced Henry to throw up his job in Watertown and to help him clear the land, the affairs of the Sticheman family took a decided turn for the better. Henry was not long in the woods to remain and to help clear the land before he met Louise Turner and became convinced that he needed her help. So in due time after the usual preliminaries, Henry and Louise were married 62 years ago on the farm which they afterward cleared and prospered upon.

Mrs. Sticheman says that after they got fairly well started clearing the land, they never suffered from the lack of food or clothing. The land furnished them food in abundance and a large surplus of farm products to sell. By spinning wool and weaving the yarn into cloth, she was able to supply her family with all the clothing needed. There was very little sickness in the family and no doctors to be had. They knew nothing about medicine in early days and the only thing they could do for a sick person was to sit him all the time needed to get well again.

Mrs. Sticheman, although mentally alert and responsive is bowed down, perhaps not so much by the weight of her 84 years as by the work she did, her struggles to succeed and the hardships, privations and exposure she endured in pioneer days.

Mrs. Sticheman lost her husband in 1908 and has four children, Caroline, Mary, Lydia and Frederic W. All three are now living on the farm where she was married. Her son, Frederic is with her.

LAW NOT BLAMED FOR DRY STATUS OF CHEESE

By Associated Press

Madison—The state law requiring cheese to be dry before shipment is not to be blamed for the lack of softness in the product, Math Mitchell, dairy specialist of the state department of markets said in a statement. He declared that soft and mealy cheese is no indication of high moisture content.

In the opinion of Mr. Mitchell the reason for the poor quality of cheese found on the market is that it leaves the factory before properly cured and is rushed to market.

The statement said that "there will be no marked change in the situation until the cheese dealer will pay for quality and not on a flat basis regardless of quality. The object of the Wisconsin cheese grading system is to do away with the unbusinesslike method of paying for cheese on the so-called 'flat basis'."

CABINET SESSION CONSIDERS FARMS

Report Shows European Wheat
Demand For 1924 Cut By
200,000,000 Bushels

By Associated Press

Washington—Practically all of Tuesday's cabinet meeting, the longest held since President Coolidge entered the White House was devoted to discussion of the agricultural situation.

Afterwards it became known that Secretary Wallace is making a particular study of the wheat problem, and will report to the president late next week, presenting facts which are expected to enable the executive and his advisors to formulate a constructive program along sound economic lines.

Some suggestions under consideration include the raising by some wheat growers of other kinds of crops to replace commodities now imported. The growing of more sugar beets and flax is one proposal considered.

There has been a large world wheat production this year, and reports given to the chief executive and his official family indicate Europe probably will take 200,000,000 bushels less American wheat than in the past year.

The condition in the corn belt is held to be satisfactory, with prices remarkably high. Substantially the same reports regarding the cattle and hog industries have been received.

President Coolidge has an engagement to confer Sept. 29, with a committee of bankers of the ninth federal reserve district, which will come to Washington to urge legislation reviving the United States Grain corporation. They will propose that the corporation be given the power to handle the wheat crop to the best advantage, but without any authority to fix a guaranteed price.

LEGALITY OF ZONE LAW TO BE TESTED

By Associated Press

Madison—The building heights law enacted by the 1923 Wisconsin legislature will come to a test before the supreme court here Friday, as a result of leave granted Tuesday by the court to hear arguments on three cases attacking constitutionality of the statute. Motions for immediate hearing were granted in the case of Piper Brothers against the state; the Wisconsin Telephone company at Milwaukee against the state; and of a Green Bay Hotel company against the state.

Attorneys told the court that building projects were being held up in a number of Wisconsin cities pending a decision on constitutionality of the state law limiting the height of buildings to 100 feet in all cities with the exception of Milwaukee, and to 125 feet in Milwaukee.

Three lower court decisions, two of them holding the building heights law unconstitutional and one upholding the validity of the state law, were brought before the court on appeal. Arguments on all of the cases involving the issues raised, are to be heard at the foot of Friday's call.

COUNTER REVOLT FEARED IN SPAIN

Party Chiefs Prepare To Move
As Rumor Of Deportations Spreads

By Associated Press

Port Vendres, France—Spanish Frontiersmen are feared in many quarters that a counter revolution in Spain will occur sooner or later, but for the moment the people and the political leaders seem stupefied by the rapid turn of events in the past few days.

Party chiefs who have heard rumors that many are to be expelled are greatly perturbed. These reports are apparently well founded and various prominent persons are making preparations to leave before they are conducted to the frontier.

Some surprise followed the announcement of the steps taken at last Saturday night's conference of the military directorate, which instead of appointing ministers, decided to continue to act as a dictatorial body, leaving the work of administration to be done by the permanent officials in the various departments.

NO SLUMP IN BUTTER PRODUCTION, SAYS STATE

By Associated Press

Madison—Rumors that there was a big decline in butter production in Wisconsin are unfounded, the dairy department, Wisconsin college of agriculture announces.

During 1922 Wisconsin produced 142,235,000 pounds of butter. This figure marked the peak of butter production in the state and in the department's opinion there is apt to be a slight decline from that figure this year. Reports although rather incomplete, indicate that the production is not showing any marked decline.

Butter production varies somewhat with the rise and decline in the demand for other dairy products, the department said. Condensaries at the present time are paying an exceptionally good price for milk. This is expected to divert some milk into this

"Roll me a cigaret, please—a nice fat one. You are rather a devil, aren't you? You spend half your days wandering in the jungle wearing all sorts of unclean disguises, chasing a fat, oily Oriental. When ever you feel you require a rest from this absorbing occupation, you wander in here at any old hour, drink our whiskey, and talk shop into the ever-receptive ears of my brother. Having exhausted every possible subject of interest, it dawns upon you that you've a fiancée knocking around somewhere. How's Monica, by the bye?" She glanced down at the cigaret, now nearing completion. "As a very special honor you may molest the paper and tick it down."

"Duty before pleasure, you know," said Pennington, striking a match. "Besides, I thought you'd be gone to bed."

"I had, but there was a mosquito in my curtains—a particularly hungry specimen—and I couldn't sleep. I say, is Domborg really in with Chai-Hung?"

The two men exchanged glances. "Monica," he remonstrated. Hewitt "you've been listening."

"My poor beleaguered imbecile, the wooden walls of this luxurious mansion act like so many sounding boards; besides, have you ever encountered the brand of woman that is going to stuff cotton-wool in her ears and dive under the bedclothes when secret service agents are broadcasting their exploits?"

"Brutally disillusioned!" Of all the women in the world I believed you were the one who would."

"Who's Domborg, Jack? Isn't he that nice old Dutchman with the gray hair we met once at Sandakan?" Hewitt stretched his long legs.

"That's the fellow. I must confess I liked Domborg. Still, if Peter says—"

"I don't say anything. For all I know Domborg may have no active hand in the affair at all, but the trouble has been traced to the Kashtayer area and, theoretically, he's responsible for anything that goes on there."

The Commissioner began counting on his fingers.

"Who's up there with him? Let's see, Vance, Van Daulen and Whitaker. Fairly decent crowd, taking them all round."

Hewitt rose slowly and began pacing the veranda, his hands clasped behind him.

There came a thundering of hooves from the white road at the foot of the slope, and before Monica could reach the rail, a man had neared the path and clambered up the steps. He halted on the threshold as if the light dazzled him, then hurled an accusing finger at Hewitt.

"Look here, Captain Hewitt, I'm in no mood to pick my words. I want to know when you're going to put an end to this Yellow Seven business."

The Commissioner poised himself on the table.

"It would simplify matters a great deal," he said coldly, "if I knew who you were."

"I'm Van Daulen—of Kashtayer. I've ridden every inch of the way from there tonight."

"Did Domborg tell you to come?" demanded Pennington.

The newcomer shot a glance at the speaker.

"I came here to see the Commissioner," he returned pointedly, "but since you ask it, Domborg didn't tell me anything; he couldn't—he's dead!"

For fully a minute silence reigned on the broad veranda.

night to inform you of the seriousness of the position in our territory, not to answer absurd questions."

"Sorry! I thought you two had possibly met before. Van Daulen, this is Pennington. He's responsible for any action taken against Chai-Hung and consequently entitled to ask what questions he chooses. Have you fixed up a room anywhere?"

"I expect there's room for me at the Rest-House, thanks."

"Well, drop in any time after ten tomorrow and we'll talk things over. I'm sorry about poor Domborg. Good night."

He was barely out of earshot when Hewitt swung round on Pennington.

"Rather a blow to your theory, what?"

"Not in the least."

"You'll never admit when you're wrong," persisted the Commissioner sadly.

"And you'll never admit when I'm right. By the way, keep young Van Daulen in Jeddah as long as you can. I shall be running up to Kashtayer tomorrow."

Hewitt drained his glass and made off down the passageway to his room.

"I'll do my best," he shouted back over his shoulder, "but Van Daulen's inclined to be impetuous."

"Peter," Monica demanded when they were alone, "why do you go out of your way to quarrel?"

"I don't."

"But you do, dear. The way you tackled that poor fellow, who'd ridden goodness knows how many miles, made me feel positively uncomfortable. He was dead beat, you know."

"I wonder who discovered the fine metal point in the pen-holder—and decided it had been smeared with poison?"

"You haven't been listening. I don't believe you heard a word I said."

"Dear little woman, I've been listening most patiently, but you see it's utterly impossible for you to understand my motives. I'm a queer jumbled-up piece of machinery, sometimes actuated by reason, sometimes by a sort of sixth sense which Nature gave to me when she presented me with Chinese eyes. That's why I'm here now, it's exactly why your brother sent for me, and it's why I sometimes talk as I do. I'm not like that with you."

"I should hope not indeed!"

"Not with Jack or Dawson—or even that prince of scoundrels Rabat-Pilai. Do you remember what I was saying before Van Daulen came in? Somebody at Kashtayer's in league with Chai-Hung—and I've got to put my finger on him and keep it there. It might be Vance, Whitaker, their chief watchman, their Tamil apothecary, it might be the other hand, be Van Daulen. I jumped on him right away when, as you say, he was dead beat. Why? Because at such a time he was less likely to be on his guard."

"You've no earthly reason to suspect him."

"Except," said Pennington dreamily, "that when he stooped to put that pot of yellow paint away a corner of his tunic dipped into it!"

"Monica's brain reeled."

"But—"

"He came away without bothering to change. Perhaps you didn't notice, but the bottom corners of his coat curled—and the bulk of the stain was on the under side."

"It's still purely conjecture. He might have gone right up to the sign to examine it—and brushed his jacket against it."

Pennington smiled.

"He might—if he'd troubled to inspect it with a ladder. The yellow Seven, if you remember, was painted on the side of Domborg's house—and Domborg's bungalow is built on piles ten feet or more above the ground."

She caught both sides of his coat and forced him to look at her.

"Do be careful, Peter, for my sake."

He ran his fingers carefully through her curls.

"There's no need to be anxious," he said, "for I shan't want to be so very alone. Rabat-Pilai will be hovering in the shadows. Holy Moses! have you the remotest idea what the time is?"

She shook her head and there was a wistful look in her eyes.

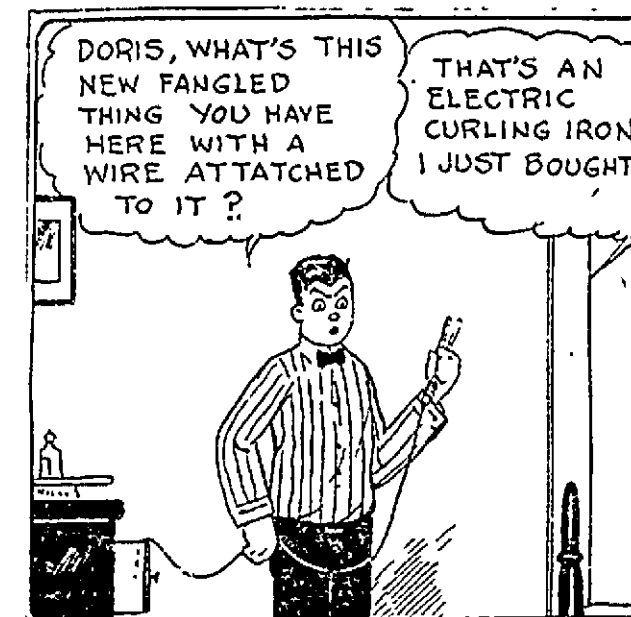

"It passes so quickly when you are here—and so slowly when you're away on these wretched expeditions. Come back soon, Peter dearest; promise me you'll come back soon."

And Peter Pennington promised.

"Evening, Van Daulen."

Cover Knees Of Child, Says Doctor

Chilly Days Of Fall Should Mean Warmer Clothing, She Says.

New York — No matter how pretty an infant, and pink little Hildegarde's knees are, cover them up with stout, warm stockings during the coming nippy school days. Our climate's too changeable for children to wear socks, warns Dr. M. Alice Asserson in a series of timely admonitions to mothers.

"It's true socks are worn by some children in England and France during the winter," she says, "but there the weather's less variable. A child particularly a very little one, should be kept warm from neck to toes."

Dr. Asserson is director of children's work for the New York Tuberculosis Association, which co-operates in the health program of the New York Federation of Women's Clubs.

"Dress children in wool, or silk and wool undergarments, or in cotton. If very far south," she advises, "but never put dark woolen dresses on them. Dark wool isn't easily cleaned and too often such dresses are worn uncleaned from one season to the next. Dress the child in gingham and prints that may be washed weekly."

"Many country schools now prohibit woolen frocks. They insist on washable garments. Some schools have for a uniform pleated woolen skirts, with cotton blouses. Health authorities say that the all-cotton frock, suit or uniform is better. In childhood, diseases are more easily contracted, hence the need for the utmost care."

"The wise mother will select gay gingham and quaint prints for her little girl."

"A little girl's school dress forming the principal feature of a Fifth avenue window display recently was of red and white check gingham, with a front panel extending from the neck to the hem of the little skirt, and this panel was outlined with a row of simple fresh-water pearl buttons. These buttons are inexpensive, strong and washable, making them suitable for the small frocks that must go to the tub again and again."

Next Generation Of Women Will Seek Ways To Become More Stout

BY MARIAN HALE

New York — How to get thin may be the problem confronting women of this generation, but it won't bother our daughters in the least. In fact the next generation will be worrying about getting stout, instead.

This is the belief of Sybil Vane, the Welsh opera singer, who confesses she's staying thin because—well, because it's the mode. In Cardiff, Miss Vane's home, she is known as the "vest pocket prima donna" because she is one of the smallest women in opera.

"Twenty years from now," declares Miss Vane, "we will probably be drinking cream and living on chocolates trying to get some flesh back on our bones."

Miss Vane arrives at this conclusion from her belief that we are getting so thin we'll want a change and get fat!

SLENDER AGE

"I believe we are coming to an era of leanness and slenderness such as has never before been known," she goes on. "The whirlwind dancing the young people of today indulge in is developing a type of athletic, angular women."

Though Miss Vane is a singer, she spends quite as much time dancing as she would if she were in the ballet. With a pedometer around her ankle she dances three miles daily. She considers this the best possible exercise for singing, breath control and slenderness.

But just as this is the mode today, she believes, it will be more of an historic curiosity a score of years from now.

ATHLETICS THE MODE

"At no time since the days of the Amazons," she explains, "have women consciously or unconsciously given so much time to slown and muscle building. Because of the new type of music to which we dance, and the dances themselves, practically every part of our body gets its complete quota of exercise."

"No woman who dances the modern dances to our modern music can be fat. Take, for instance, a tune like 'Running Wild,' a purely African theme. Such a tune can work you up to a Turkish bath state before you realize it."

MISS SYBIL VANE

And, of course, when slenderness has become the rule and women have eliminated all curves, suddenly curves will become desirable, and we'll all add calories, instead of subtracting calories, from our menus."

First Job Is Trial To Many Girls

New York — Be careful of that first job. It may spell happiness and success. Too often it spells discontent and years of wasted effort.

Tucked away in the heart of New York's business district is a port for unhappy girls. It is known as the Girl's Service League. Here girls who can't get along with their parents, girls who can't get along with their bosses, girls who want to do great and beautiful things but haven't yet found themselves are taken in and sheltered and advised and set on their way again.

And a great deal of the unhappiness arises because girls are careless in their choice of first jobs, says Miss Esther Miller, director of the league's service bureau, who every year places more than a thousand girls in positions where they can make good.

"The average girl who sets out in quest of work," she explains, "decides she would like a place with the Blank Filing Company, because her chum's employed there, or maybe in the bank where her brother used to be an errand boy, or that she'd prefer a clerical job, it has such an important sound. But, perhaps she isn't fitted for any of these things."

"One girl came to me who had lost one position after another. She was a stenographer, but it seemed impossible to keep her mind on her work, and her memory was poor."

"I discovered that her outstanding characteristic was a fondness for doing things for other people. She opens the rainbow door and he's sneaked in."

"He carries a magic stick he calls 'Old Harry,'" went on Mister Sky Bow. "And every time he waves it somebody becomes unhappy. That roaring noise is his voice and the other noise you hear is crying."

"Who's crying?" asked Nancy curiously.

"Why, the poor Rainbow Landers," said Mister Sky Bow. "The Noses and the Dummies and the Puffies and the Sneezles and everybody. They aren't happy any more, because Cross Patch has waved his horrid stick and made them unhappy. The Earlies, too, no doubt, have discovered that their ears were so proud of, are not beautiful, and the Noses have probably learned the same thing about their noses."

"Oh, we'll have to help them," said the little girl.

had a great wealth of affection which never got a chance to display itself at home, for her life there was unhappy."

"I placed her in a home where there were several children to care for. The home's mistress took a motherly interest in her. During her spare hours she's been taking a course in nursing and now she is completely happy."

"Almost every girl wants a clerical post. Almost all dislike the thought of factory work. Yet there are wonderful chances for advancement in factories, while the clerical field is overcrowded."

"The girl seeking her first job should take stock of herself, learn what she can do best, visualize the future, see what kind of position she's likely to be holding ten years later."

"Then she should look for the work she's best suited to—the kind that offers the greatest opportunity for advancement. It may pay less money in the beginning but it will pay better dividends, not only in cash, but in health and contentment, in the end."

Psychological and vocational tests, Miss Miller adds, are almost invaluable aids to the girl who has not yet found herself. The girls are willing to take them when once the understanding is made.

STATE TELLS HOW TO TREAT FROSTED CORN

Madison—Farmers in the state are busy salvaging their frosted corn crop. Recent heavy frosts have made it necessary to speed the ensiling of the crop. Reports from all sections of the state indicate that practically all of Wisconsin's 26,000 silos will shortly be bulging with winter succulence.

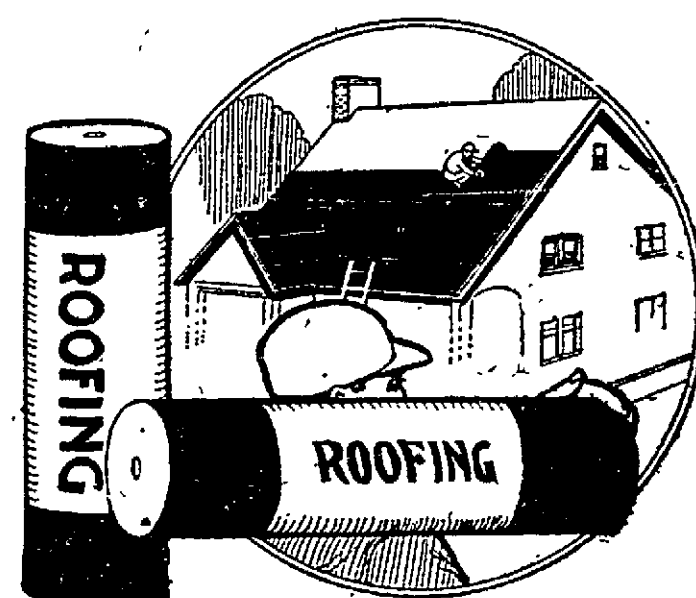

In speaking of the best manner to deal with frosted corn, F. B. Morrison, of the Wisconsin college of Agriculture, is assuring many inquirers that satisfactory silage can be secured from frosted corn.

"The crop should be ensiled as quickly as possible, for the storm which usually soon follows on the heels of a frost will wash out much of the nutriment from the frosted forage and the wind will also whip off the dry brittle leaves," declares Morrison. "If the plants dry out before all the crop can be ensiled, water should be added as the silo is filled, to insure the necessary fermentations that preserve the silage."

STRING BEANS

String or wax beans are an economical dish in that there is so little waste in the preparation of them. A pound of stringless "string" beans will serve six persons.

This recipe for beans with bacon is perhaps a bit different. The dish is very nourishing and should accompany a light meat course.

BEANS WITH BACON

One pound beans, 3 slices bacon. Snap beans and wash. Cut bacon in small pieces. Put it in the sauce pan in which the beans are to be cooked. Try out without crisping. Cut beans in short lengths and put into sauce pan with bacon fat and bacon. Do not add water. Cover closely and let simmer over a slow fire for 15 minutes. Shake the pan to prevent sticking. Add boiling water to cover and simmer for an hour. Replenish water as necessary, but when beans are nearly done let water cook away. Season with pepper and serve on the dinner plates with meat and potatoes.

Beans are good cooked in combination with other vegetables.

COMBINATION BEANS

One pound string beans, 2 tomatoes, 1 onion, 2 green peppers, 2 stalks celery, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons olive oil.

Wash and snap beans. Split and cut in short lengths. Put in stew pan and cover with boiling water. Add tomatoes peeled and cut in slices. Pour boiling water over peppers and let stand five minutes. Remove the thin skin that coats the pepper. Open and take out seeds and white pith. Mince peppers, celery and onion. Add to beans and cook two hours. One-half hour before serving add olive oil and seasoning. Serve in sauce dishes.

ITALIAN BEANS

One pound beans, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons butter, 1/4 cup milk, 1 dessertspoon lemon juice, 2 tablespoons grated cheese, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1/4 teaspoon pepper.

Wash and snap beans. Cut in long narrow strips. Put in sauce pan of boiling water, salt slightly and boil 15 minutes. Drain. Melt butter and add beans. Cover and simmer until tender. Shake the pan to prevent burning. Beat the egg, add cheese, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Add lemon juice to beans. Pour over egg mixture and stir over the fire till very hot. This is a good luncheon dish for a one-dish meal.

Hands Full To Win

Appleton is out of the running for the State league pennant, but still has a contest to play before the end of the season, and in spite of the loss of the big incentive, will fight to the finish. Fond du Lac's rejuvenated Red Sox are playing better ball than they have since the beginning of the season, and the loss of Bill Lankford, the star pitcher, has not hurt them. It is true, but the Faris tribe will still have to play ball to win next Sunday. The Red Sox are holding down a berth in the basement, one game behind the Oshkosh Indians, and a victory for Faris and a defeat for the Indians will reverse their positions.

RUSH TRIBE IS FAVORITE
Rush's clan and the Chairs are still tied for first place. The Falls are due for an invasion of the Twins' territory, and anticipate a soft job in their contest there, while the Sheboygan club is not so sure of an easy victory at Green Bay. Neenah-Menasha is generally conceded the favorite in the pennant chase, but the unexpected has a habit of happening occasionally, and a lot can happen in the game remaining on the schedule.

Kaukauna is fifth in the scramble, one game behind Green Bay. If Stumpf succeeds in humbling the Indians, and Green Bay loses to Sheboygan, these two clubs will also be tied, so no matter which way Sunday's contests end, there are bound to be one or two disputed claims left to fight out after the close of the schedule.

Good Golfer
Despite Loss
Of Right Arm

Chicago—Physical handicaps mean nothing to the enthusiastic golfer. Loss of an arm, for instance, does not mean that a player cannot become proficient in golf.

Eddie Reilly, a Chicago pro, who has been playing the game for 10 years, invariably plays in the low seventies. Some years ago he suffered the loss of his right arm. All his golfing is done with the left arm, although he assumes the stance of a right hander. Four years ago he played the Marquette Park course in 71, his best score.

To even up for this extraordinary play on the part of a one-armed professional, the amateur ranks present John Funk of El Reno, Okla. Funk, while not claiming, the low scores that Reilly is able to attain, plays a highly creditable game.

The par for the El Reno course is 72, and Funk always plays it between 80 and 85. While Funk plays well from the tee, his best shots are the approach and putt.

APPLE CREEK PLAYS
DALE TEAM SUNDAYSanderfoot's Threebagger With Bases Full Helps Jahne
Beat Bonduel

Jahne's Apple Creek sluggers Sunday defeated the Bonduel clan, 7 to 5. The sensation of the contest came in the fourth inning, when Sanderfoot poked the apple for three stations with the bases full. A couple of errors by the Apple Creek aggregation gave the Bonduels three tallies in the second. Turner and Siskinsky both pitched excellent ball. Turner allowed nine hits, walked three men and struck out four, while Siskinsky struck out nine, walked three, hit three more, and allowed six hits. The fielding of the Jahne tribe prevented Bonduel's players from scoring on their hits, which were scattered.

The score by innings: Apple Creek . . . 0 2 0 4 1 0 0 0—7. Bonduel . . . 0 3 0 0 2 0 0 0—5.
Batteries: for Apple Creek, Turner and Schabo; Bonduel, Siskinsky and Radtke.
Sunday Apple Creek has scheduled a game with Dale, who is making a strong bid for the county championship. The two clubs have met once before this season, and the Jahnekins came off victors. Since that time Dale has lost but one other contest. Apple Creek has won 14 of its 15 contests this year.

APPLETON WOMEN
PRACTICE BOWLING

Bowling enthusiasts of the Appleton Women's club are preparing for the coming season, and have already played several practice games to get into trim. As yet, no attempt has been made to organize teams, but the ladies meet whenever possible and plan to get set in the near future. Monday evening about twenty of them turned out for practice at the Janice alley, and several very creditable scores were rolled, in spite of the fact that the season has just begun. Every alley was in use during the whole evening, and judging by the enthusiasm displayed, bowling has found a large number of staunch adherents among the fair sex in Appleton.

STATE LEAGUE
NOTES

The baseball fans are getting set for the post season series between the Neenah-Menasha Falls and Sheboygan Chairs for the pennant. Of course there is still a chance for the dope to be upset but the dopsters are figuring that the title contests will be played. A 3-game series is probable.

George Hogreiver, one of President McGillan's honest-to-goodness umpires had a pleasant time in the Fondy-Green Bay doubleheader last Sunday. Hogreiver breezed through the afternoon without a single uprising and the games were run off like a "pinkies" party. Minus the tea, of course.

Unless some of the big league barnstorming aggregations slice down their guarantee demands, it isn't likely that any of them will get bookings with the State league clubs. The "major" squads are asking $500 appearance fee with a top heavy price. This seems to be a fair percentage. The "minor" clubs are already looking forward to next season, and there promises to be some fireworks on tap at the fall session of the league. An attempt will surely be made to reduce the salary list. In this way it is hoped to cultivate the use of "home town" diamond products.

No matter what happens next Sunday, the State league set a record in one respect this season. To date, 95 league contests have been played on this season without a single freeze being laid over on account of inclement weather conditions. Never before has this happened.

Ratchesen, the Kaukauna first sacker, is now holding down the short stop plating task for the Electric City gang. Stumpf cut down expenses by letting some of his veterans drift away and the Kaukauna manager didn't have a good short stop available so he switched Ratchesen around.

Pres Noel, the veteran hurler was pressed into service by the Oshkosh club for the game with the St. Paul Twins. The Northerners found him easy pickings and they craved fifteen swats off his benders. Noel did some hitting himself, getting three cracks in four trips to the plate.

Harry Sylvester is winding up a pretty good season on the diamond. The Appleton manager is way up there in the batting averages and he is still able to cover a lot of ground. Sunday in the game at Sheboygan with the Chairs, Sylvester got half of his team's hits.

WALTER JOHNSON IS 'GENTLEMAN'
OF BIG LEAGUESUmpires, Managers And Players
Agree No Finer Character
Of Diamond

BY BILLY EVANS

Washington—Baseball fans have a keen interest in the big stars of the game.

After every contest in which some of the leading lights appear, there's always a big following outside the dressing room door to get a closeup of the favorite.

What kind of a fellow is So and So? That is the common question asked about the famous men of the diamond.

Perhaps no player in the game has had a more spectacular career than Walter Johnson. Coming to the American league an unknown rookie pitcher, inside of a month he was the sensation of the circuit.

Until the coming of the lively ball most of the glamor of the diamond centered around the pitcher. He was the big hero.

But the lively ball and Babe Ruth have changed things. The slugger is the hero of today in baseball. The player with the healthy wallop in his bat gets the loud applause.

JOHNSON IS BIG FAVORITE
What kind of a fellow is Walter Johnson?

That question has been asked me hundreds of times after Walter would perform some brilliant pitching feat. "No finer fellow ever graced the major leagues."

In one short sentence that sums up the feeling of every player and umpire in the big show.

"They don't make 'em any better," is the way I have heard scores of players size up Johnson, in discussing the great pitcher.

During his long career in the majors Johnson always has won and lost on his merits. Never has he stooped to unsportsmanlike methods in order to increase his effectiveness.

When at the height of his career, Johnson could have made himself practically invincible if he occasionally resorted to the "bean ball," thereby intimidating the batsmen.

A REAL SPORTSMAN
"I don't want to win ball games," Johnson once replied in answer to why he never resorted to such a method. "and I would never forgive myself if I injured some one in that way."

As a result batsmen always faced Johnson, possessor of more speed than any pitcher in the history of the game, without the slightest fear. Blessed with good control, they also were aware that he would never throw at them.

No umpire can ever recall Johnson making a serious kick and no doubt he has slipped many a tough one on the infield. All insisting I had missed the idea.

"Fussing with the umpires never helped any pitcher. The umpires like to do their work well, just as I like to pitch a good game. I have always felt that the less you fuss with the umpire, the better he works."

This episode in which was the umpire, best illustrates what a remarkable character Johnson is.

JOHNSON SETTLED DISPUTE
In the ninth inning of a ball game, when two other tough birds, in Eddie Cicotte and Red Faber, Cicotte, master of all the pitching tricks of the game, gave a catcher a day's work any time he performed. I have seen substitute catchers essay to handle Cicotte's stuff and have a terrible time.

Schalk finally got his chance. It took only a few innings to prove that catching Walsh was easy for Schalk. Until Walsh passed out of the majors, Schalk was his regular battery mate. He took care of Walsh in as acceptable manner as did Sullivan, and in his day there was no better receiver than Billy Sullivan.

In addition to Walsh, Schalk has caught two other tough birds, in Eddie Cicotte and Red Faber. Cicotte, master of all the pitching tricks of the game, gave a catcher a day's work any time he performed. I have seen substitute catchers essay to handle Cicotte's stuff and have a terrible time.

Schalk's biggest year was in 1920 when he caught 151 games, and his lean year was 1918 when he caught only 106 games, the season being curtailed because of the war.

It will be a long time before baseball produces another catcher of the Schalk type, a player capable of doing much work and doing it well.

BAIT CASTING
By M. J. V. Fose

REAL REELS
Much of the angler's enjoyment and efficiency depends on that little piece of mechanism called the quadruple multiplying reel and it is one of the hardest worked pieces of machinery in the whole bait-tosser's outfit.

Isn't it surprising when you figure out the number of miles a reel travels in a day's casting? That little spool is running every minute and travels the rate of about 500 miles an hour, as nearly as one can figure it out.

The average bait-tosser will hoist a bait at the rate of one a minute and the casts will average from 25 to 150 feet, or say a total average of 25 feet at each cast, which amounts to 2,500 feet an hour, which is about 20 miles an hour. Now just figure out how long an automobile would run without oil at this rate. Therefore it is really a necessity that a reel should be oiled every time it is taken out or, if used the entire day, should be given a little between times, in order to keep it in tip-top shape.

Reel buying is a good deal like buying an automobile. One cannot expect an efficient, quiet running car at a cheap price. Good workmanship in reels costs money the same as it does in automobiles, and the finest reels are those that are hand-made, such as the Talbot and other perfectly made reels. "Wonder-Man" Of Diamond

RAY SCHALK

BY BILLY EVANS
Chicago—Ray Schalk of the Chicago White Sox stands out as the most remarkable figure in baseball.

The diminutive catcher of the Chicago White Sox has just passed the 100 mark in games caught for 1923. That makes 11 successive years in which Schalk has caught more than 100 ball games.

Schalk's performance is all the more remarkable when you consider that he has been catching some of the most difficult pitchers in the game.

When he joined the Chicago club, Billy Sullivan was the headliner in the catching end of the game. Sullivan was nearing the end of his career, while Ed Walsh, star pitcher of the Sox was at the top of his game.

Who would catch Walsh when Sullivan passed out of the picture? Could the Sox handle the deceptive spitball delivery of the giant Walsh? Most of the baseball experts scoffed the idea.

SCHALK UPSET CRITICS
Schalk finally got his chance. It took only a few innings to prove that catching Walsh was easy for Schalk. Until Walsh passed out of the majors, Schalk was his regular battery mate. He took care of Walsh in as acceptable manner as did Sullivan, and in his day there was no better receiver than Billy Sullivan.

In addition to Walsh, Schalk has caught two other tough birds, in Eddie Cicotte and Red Faber. Cicotte, master of all the pitching tricks of the game, gave a catcher a day's work any time he performed. I have seen substitute catchers essay to handle Cicotte's stuff and have a terrible time.

Schalk's biggest year was in 1920 when he caught 151 games, and his lean year was 1918 when he caught only 106 games, the season being curtailed because of the war.

It will be a long time before baseball produces another catcher of the Schalk type, a player capable of doing much work and doing it well.

Aftermath Of Big Fight Brings Charge Of Fouls

BY HENRY L. FARRELL
New York—Much is being made over the number and variety of fouls that the admirers of Luis Angel Firpo allege Jack Dempsey committed against him when the champion was waving his terrific battle Friday night to retain his crown.

Firpo's handlers charge that their man failed to win the championship because he adhered to the rules and the champion did not and Horatio Lavalle, the trainer of the South American, went so far as to state that the referee was supporting Dempsey with more than his heart.

MINOR INFRACTIONS
Dempsey did commit a few minor infractions of the rules, it is true, but they were not serious enough to make him liable for disqualification and when he did transgress the rules it was at a time when it was obvious that the champion was groggy and did not know exactly what he was doing.

Firpo might have suffered a little when Dempsey hit him once before he was entirely erect after a knockdown when the champion punched him after the bell and again when Jack was helped into the ring after he had been knocked through the ropes into the press box.

The South American, however, got the best break of the evening when he was given a count of more than 10 early in the first round. He was really knocked out soon after the fight opened and was on the floor when both the referee and the counting time keeper reached the count of ten.

In the excitement the referee thought it was the duty of the counting time keeper to declare the "out," and the time keeper thought the referee should do it. They both hesitated and Firpo got to his feet and continued the fight.

This happened before Dempsey had committed any fouls.

SCRIBE HELPED JACK
William Muldoon, chairman of the boxing commission, says that Dempsey could have been disqualified for being assisted back into the ring. The champion, however, was not given too much assistance. He was given a little shove by a newspaper man who was actuated more by the motive to get 132 pounds off him than by the desire to help Dempsey back into the ring and save the championship.

Dempsey fell in such a position that he had little difficulty in squirreling around and pulling himself back into the ring without help. Any one who sat in the narrow box in the press box knew that no one man or two men could get leverage enough to push close to 200 pounds up over their heads and into the ring.

Firpo, in making complaints against the referee, is a poor sport. Those who have known him for some time feel sure that his handlers have prompted him to make those alibis. It is doubtful if Firpo knew anything about what happened during that hectic four minutes.

NATIONAL LEADERS
HUMBLE CARDS, 10-4
IN STORM OF HITSYanks Fail To Clinch Pennant,
Losing 8 To 3 To Cleveland Indians

By Associated Press.

Chicago—The New York Yankees failed again Tuesday to clinch the American league pennant, losing to Cleveland, 8 to 3. Meusel treated himself to two doubles and a homerun, but the other Yankees could not find Shaute's delivery.

The New York Giants advanced a little closer to the National league pennant and the world's series by defeating the St. Louis Cardinals, 10 to 4, in a hard hitting battle. They are now five games in the lead.

The Pittsburgh Pirates traveled along by trimming the Boston Braves, 12 to 2, without the slightest show of effort. Cincinnati being idle because of rain, dropped back.

Detroit and Philadelphia split a doubleheader, the Tigers winning the first, 8 to 2, and losing the second, 10 to 9. The managers shifted the players about with great frequency during the games but nothing remarkable seemed to come of it.

St. Louis and Washington also divided honors, the Senators losing the first, 5 to 1, and winning the second, 2 to 1.

Gharriety's homerun in the ninth inning of the first game prevented a shutout.

The Chicago White Sox trimmed the Boston Red Sox, 5 to 2 in Boston. Willie Kamm, Chicago's star third baseman who is leading the American league in two base hits, ran his string to 39 when he got hold of one of Blethen's offerings.

Eddie Collins, captain of the Chicago Americans, stole his thirty-fourth base of the season in the game against Boston.

Ted Blankenship, the Texas cowboy, pitched in fine form, holding the Red Sox to seven scattered hits, while his mates bunched hits with some during base running which gave Chicago a 6 to 2 win.

Cleveland delayed New York clinching the American league pennant by taking the last game of the series, 8 to 3, giving the Indians 12 victories to 10 defeats against the Yanks for the season.

SETS REMARKABLE RECORD
Schalk is sure the wonder man of baseball when it comes to work and efficiency.

Right now it looks as if he'd catch about 130 games this year. In the 10 years prior to 1923, Schalk had worked 1323 games, an average of 132 games a season out of a possible 154.

The sure is stopping some. Some idea of the record Schalk has established can be gleaned from the fact that George Gibson, who ranks second to Schalk in the matter of work performed, has only six years to his credit in which he has caught more than 100 games. Chief Myers, when with New York, caught 100 or more games for five consecutive years. Schalk has already more than doubled that record.

Schalk's biggest year was in 1920 when he caught 151 games, and his lean year was 1918 when he caught only 106 games, the season being curtailed because of the war.

It will be a long time before baseball produces another catcher of the Schalk type, a player capable of doing much work and doing it well.

Ray Caldwell, the former Major league player, the "Iron Man" for Kansas City and pitched his team to victory in a double header over Minneapolis club of the American Association. He won the games by scores of 8 to 0, and 10 to 5. Caldwell pitched the entire 15 innings and struck out 16 men, 11 of whom were breezed in the first game.

Detroit drove Rommel of the hill in the first game and won from the Philadelphia Americans, 5 to 2. But Rommel staged a comeback in the second encounter and nosed out a victory of 10 to 2.

BAIT CASTING
By M. J. V. Fose

REAL REELS
Much of the angler's enjoyment and efficiency depends on that little piece of mechanism called the quadruple multiplying reel and it is one of the hardest worked pieces of machinery in the whole bait-tosser's outfit.

Isn't it surprising when you figure out the number of miles a reel travels in a day's casting? That little spool is running every minute and travels the rate of about 500 miles an hour, as nearly as one can figure it out.

The average bait-tosser will hoist a bait at the rate of one a minute and the casts will average from 25 to 150 feet, or say a total average of 25 feet at each cast, which amounts to 2,500 feet an hour, which is about 20 miles an hour. Now just figure out how long an automobile would run without oil at this rate. Therefore it is really a necessity that a reel should be oiled every time it is taken out or, if used the entire day, should be given a little between times, in order to keep it in tip-top shape.

Reel buying is a good deal like buying an automobile. One cannot expect an efficient, quiet running car at a cheap price. Good workmanship in reels costs money the same as it does in automobiles, and the finest reels are those that are hand-made, such as the Talbot and other perfectly made reels. The reel mentioned is one of the most dependable articles on the market. It is easy in starting, quiet in action and is an excellent tool in the hands of an angler who will not abuse it, and

Grid Squads In YearsCoaches Report Elevens Filled
With Material Of High Calibre,
Experience And Capability

Madison—The 1923 gridiron season

finds Wisconsin colleges and normal schools with football teams that appear in their early season form to be far above those of past years in material and experience. Hard schedules are increasing local interest in school contests, with a successful football year predicted from all sources.

Coaches generally report that their squads are filled with material of high calibre, capable and experienced. They look for games within the Wisconsin normal school and college conferences that will rank with the best playing the smaller class of institutions.

Following is a summary of reports from a number of the schools, showing material prospects and season possibilities:

Beloit college: Always to be counted on as a strong contender for the Wisconsin college conference championship, Beloit again this year is to have a powerful, well balanced team. Coach Tommy Mills has a squad of veterans again on hand and getting in shape for the schedule of hard games to be run against during the season.

Ripon college: Coach Guy Sundt, assisted by Ralph Scott, two former University of Wisconsin stars, are at work early this season in an effort to build another championship team for Ripon. While the quality of material is not yet reported, the coaches look for several seasoned veterans in addition to new material of experience.

Carroll college: "Very good," is the report Norris Armstrong, Carroll college coach, makes on the prospects for his team this season. Armstrong, a former star on the Centre college team that will take the lead in the Little Five conference, President Ganfield, of Carroll has declared that his school will have a team that can beat the University of Wisconsin within a few years, and the team expects to start its rise this season.

Lawrence college: Coach Cub Buck is satisfied with the quality of the material reporting for workouts, most of the candidates being veterans of past seasons. Captain Leslie Black, tackle on last year's squad is back on the job, and has a fast, peppy aggregation to work with.

Stevens Point normal: "The prospects are only fair, with material mostly green, made up from men of last year's scrubs and a few high school men with limited experience," Coach J. E. Swetland says of the situation at Stevens Point. He explains that his school has few boys due to the fact that its chief concern is domestic science. A number of players are out for the squad giving indication of a team of quality.

Northwestern college: Fifty men most of them inexperienced are out for the squad at Northwestern. Seven letter men are among the number.

New York—The lightweight championship match between Benny Leonard and Johnny Dundee, who holds the featherweight crown, scheduled for Sept. 28, has been called off because of the lateness of the season.
